BURGLARS BLOW SAFE

The safe in the office of the Mummert-Dixon Company, machinists, East Hanover, was blown Monday night by burglars, who escaped with $26 in cash, a number of insurance policies and a sheaf of cancelled notes. The robbery was discovered next morning when members of the office force reported for work. The outer door of the safe was not locked. The inner doors, which were locked, were blown with nitro-glycerin, the burglar using the usual soap cup method. A sum of money and a mileage book in a drawer were not touched. Noise of the explosion was deafened when the outer door of the safe was closed. Entrance to the office was gained by use of a skeleton key. The burglar also entered the machine shop and procured a scraper, which he used in working on the safe. No one in the neighborhood heard the noise of the explosion. The blinds in the office had been drawn by the burglar while he was at work and were found pulled down to the window sills next morning.

BURGLAR STARTS FIRE

Burglars early Tuesday tried to rob the vault of the First National bank of Mt. Holly Springs, but obtained no money as far as is known. The bank, however, lost all its records for 16 years, including the current ledgers, through fire started by an acetylene torch. The banking room was badly damaged by fire and water, but the building was saved by firemen. Smoke issuing from the windows of the bank led Andrew Delp, of that place, a former resident of upper Adams county, to turn in an alarm for the fire department. Bank officials said this was the tenth time in five years attempts have been made to rob the bank. The last time was in October last year. Each time entrance was effected through the same window.

Mrs. D. Calvin Rudisill, Two Taverns, who was very ill, is much improved.

He went along with Co. F, that was recruited at Gettysburg after the declaration of war. His position was that of sutler and he followed the army of the Union selling provisions to the troops for about a year when he was captured by the Confederates and imprisoned. He escaped a short time later and returned to Gettysburg. Following the war he was engaged in various mercantile enterprises in Gettysburg. He is survived by his wife, Annie M. Warner, in whose honor the hospital was named, and two brothers, Geo. Warner and Valentine Warner, both of Gettysburg.

SHERIFF FAILED TO TURN OVER CASH TO COUNTY

Deputy Sheriff Howard J. Hartman has been indebted to the County Treasury for the costs in the case of Bessie Toddes for over two years. The costs in this case amounted to $130.35 and should have been paid to the county in November, 1919, by the Sheriff to whom the money was turned over by the woman, while still confined in the county jail. The County Commissioners have decided that since this money has been held so great a length of time by the Sheriff, the county should be reimbursed for its use and therefore to the bill of costs will be added interest at the rate of 6 per cent., dating from November, 1919, to the time of payment. At the meeting of the Auditors Thursday afternoon the former Sheriff admitted that he had received a check covering the amount of the fine ($1,000) and the costs and expressed surprise that he had not paid the costs at the time he paid the fine. He further said that he would look it up in his accounts and if he found no trace of the bill having been paid, he would make payment to the county immediately. No further word has been received in the matter. Interest for two years and four months on the money totals $18.24.

THIS ONE DIDN'T YAMOOSE!

In the marriage license records, Ebehalt declared he is a lecturer by occupation. COUPLE VISITED BY

The Lancaster Item published the following concerning a court case which created a stir in the place, one evening last summer. A number of young men from hereabouts were involved, according to report.

Raymond H. Epley, Marietta, a violinist of ability, veteran of the World War and the possessor of a war decoration for bravery in action, and a son of Horace C. Epley, York, was arrested on Monday a week by State Police. Epley is charged with having enticed 16-year-old Blanche Stotz from her home in Marietta last July. When taken into custody Epley told how he and the girl he loved had wandered to Florida, almost penniless, and then became stranded near York and walked to Marietta. Geo. Stotz, father of the pretty little runaway, didn't approve of the wanderings of his daughter with Epley, who is a married man and the father of two children, and when they appeared at his home at 4 o'clock in the morning he promptly summoned the State Police and brought charges against the musician. Epley loves Blanche Stotz and Blanche loves Epley. Both admitted this fact to the State Police and when the time came to part, tears were in the eyes of the little girl who had stuck by the man she loved, when they were penniless, probably without food and no place to find shelter when night came.

Children Are Being Educated by the Newspapers, Movies, Billboards

By ROGER W. BABSON, American Statistician.

The truth is that the schools are not educating our children at all today. Our children, our boys, are really being educated by the newspapers, the movies and the billboards. Now I am not blaming the newspapers or the movie people or the billboards. They are tending to their business, while we fathers are asleep at the switch.

So we have got to educate our young men for business. Ninety-five per cent of the young men going out of the schools of Chicago go into industry or commerce, and yet 95 per cent of the instruction in the schools of Chicago is devoted to laying the foundation for the five per cent that go into professional and other lines of activity. Yes, this great clog in our distribution system, this condition in the world today which is ruining business men, which is putting farmers into bankruptcy, which is spreading havoc throughout our land, is due to the fact that our young people, our boys, especially, who are coming out of the school without the least idea of production, without the least idea of the fundamentals of production or distribution or the basis of business success.

What would you do about it, you ask. Well, I have four suggestions to make. The first suggestion is to put religion back into the schools. I tell you that this idea that we can get on by kicking down the ladder by which our fathers and grandfathers climbed up won't work forever. Our ancestors did not come over to America with the idea of turning religion out of industry and education; no, they came here for the sole purpose of putting religion in.

The second thing we have got to do in training our young men for business is to develop principles and ground them in principles and in facts.

The third thing I should do in educating young for their life's work would be to teach them some of the basic laws of industry.

The fourth thing I should do in training our young men for industry would be to encourage the people of Chicago who are now engaged in part-time work. I would encourage the correspondence schools in Chicago. I would encourage the night schools of Chicago. I want to train young men while they are at work.

The Citizen Soldier and the Regular United States Army Officer

By W. E. LARNED, Major Ordnance Department, U. S. A.

It would be a matter of the keenest personal regret to those of us who are still in the service to feel that as West Pointers or non-West Pointers we represent an objectionable caste to the citizen soldiers of all ranks with whom we served during the trying days of the war and have reaped only their detestation. Many of us cherish feelings of the highest friendship, esteem, and appreciation of service for these men and had hoped that this feeling was mutual.

Congress has transformed the first military policy this country has ever had into law. This policy recognizes one army of the United States made up of component units, and the greatest of these is the organized reserve, composed of the citizen soldier. We in the service are bending every effort to obliterate the old vicious jealousies that existed between the regular army and its citizen companions and to strive to form one army, the army of the United States.

"Question Is Not Whether Gold Can Be Made From Base Metals, But—"

By WILLIAM A. BALLENTINE, Metallurgist.

There is nothing impossible in Thomas A. Edison's prediction that gold will yet be artificially made at a fraction of its present price. Gold has already been artificially made. Sir William Ramsay, a number of years ago, converted radium into gold. He made but a few grams of the yellow metal, but what he made was identical in every respect with gold as we know it in nature. But the gold that Sir William made cost about 20 times as much as the gold that comes from the ground.

The question before us is not whether gold can be made from base metals, but whether it can be made for less than the cost of the gold that comes out of the ground. I agree with Mr. Edison that the discovery might be made any day. I would add, however, that it may never be made.

Nothing, however, is more certain than that enormous discoveries in metallurgy are just ahead of us. The requirements of modern industrial life leave no doubt of this. Metallurgy has not kept pace with the development of other sciences because known forms of metals were sufficient for our needs. New forms of metals are now in demand, and in searching for them no one can tell what moment some one may stumble upon the way to make synthetic gold and make it cheaply.

Girls Should Not Marry Until After Five Years of Business Life

By PROF. R. L. POWERS, University of California.

The time has gone by when men choose the baby-doll type of woman with nothing to offer but a pretty face. Women with brains that are cultivated by business finesse and acumen are appreciated by most of the men.

Girls should not get married until they have had five years' experience in business life. A business adventure should be only a stepping stone to the altar. Marriage and home are the cardinal things in a woman's life. Business is secondary. They should retire from business at the time some worthy man comes along and asks them the all-important question. Women realize that their destiny is in the home, and a true woman is always ready to quit her office job for a life partnership that permits her to shine in her natural sphere.

Twenty-four years is the ideal age for a girl to marry. A girl should get a good business education, have five years of business life and then she is prepared to accept the responsibilities that come with wifehood.

THE BIRD QUARREL

LITTLE Jennie Wren was not afraid to speak her mind to anyone who happened to get in her way, and it happened one day that handsome Mr. Cardinal bird did this very thing.

He flew over from the top of a tall pine tree to the very tree near the stone wall by the road where Jennie lived, and began to sing while Mr. Wren was singing on a low limb of the tree.

"Such impertinence," sputtered Jennie Wren, flying out of her home in the tree hole. He thinks just because he is so handsome he can do anything he likes. I will soon tell him, though.

what I think of him," and up she flew near to where Mr. Cardinal was sitting singing merrily.

"You get right away from this tree or stop singing this minute," scolded little Jennie. "This tree is where we live and my husband is singing; you needn't think, just because you wear handsome feathers, you are the only singer in the woods, and my husband and I do not care for your song at all; we like our own much better."

Mr. Cardinal was so surprised that he stopped singing and listened, and when Jennie Wren stopped to breathe he said, calmly: "Have you heard my sweet-voiced wife sing? You may like to hear her song better than mine; I do."

Jennie was the surprised one this time, and she nearly lost her balance as she angrily hopped about and bobbed her tail, for she had expected Mr. Cardinal to quarrel with her.

"Huh!" replied Jennie, "your poor little wife; I should think you would say something in praise of her. The way you treat her is disgraceful. I know, and everybody must think so, too, that you are ashamed of her because she wears that brownish-gray dress all the time, while you go flying about all dressed up in fine clothes."

"For my part I admire her clothes much more than yours. She shows better taste dressing in such modest colors and, besides, if she did wear red, I guess the Cardinal family would soon come to an end, for she could be seen plainly enough by those who wish to harm birds and get their eggs."

While Jennie Wren was scolding and hopping about, a trim little bird flew to a twig near Mr. Cardinal, and when Jennie again stopped for breath Mrs. Cardinal—for it was she—said in a very sweet voice: "You are wrong, Mrs. Wren; my husband is not ashamed of me. He loves me very dearly and there is no bird that has a husband more devoted in his attentions than my handsome husband."

Again Jennie Wren was surprised, but she called back as she flew down to her home: "You poor thing; I suppose you do not dare say your soul is your own before your handsome husband; for my part I'd rather have one that is on an equal with me in appearance."

Mrs. Cardinal flew beside her husband and snuggled close. "Come back on the pine tree and I will sing to you," she said, "though I know well enough your own song is sweeter than mine."

"Not to my ears, my dear," answered Mr. Cardinal. "I think you have the sweetest voice in the world, but if you could not sing a note I should be thankful that you do not scold like Mrs. Wren."

ANGELICA

ANGELICA, a name of much more substance than the palmy Angelina, is still one of the "angelic names" which feminine fancy delights to bestow on its girl children. It means, of course, "angelic" and seems difficult to reconcile with the behavior of some of the small daughters whom one finds bearing the name.

Angelos was a Greek word meaning "heavenly messenger," hence "angel." It first became a name in the Byzantine empire when it was bestowed as an epithet upon persons of surpassing beauty. It was applied most often as a masculine name and there was a Carmelite saint called Angelo, who established it as a baptismal name. In his honor, the feminine also became popular and Italian history records many instances of its use.

Angelica sprang to fame since it named the faithless lady of romance for whose sake Orlando lost his heart and his senses. Though she was the invention of Boccaccio and Ariosto, the romantic flavor which the story gave her name brought Angelica to instant favor. England liked the name and adopted it. In France it became Angélique, and Italy produced the other forms of Angioletta and Anziletta, though Angelica continued the reigning favorite.

Angelica's talismanic gem is the pearl. It guards the purity and sweetness of her, brings her friends, and much charm. Sunday is her lucky day and 2 her lucky number. The wild rose is her flower.

THE ROMANCE OF WORDS

"CANDIDATE"

OWING to the ramifications of modern politics and the alterations in style of apparel, one would about as soon expect a "candidate" for a position to be entirely "candid" as they would expect him to make his appearance always dressed in white. But, according to the original meaning of the word, he should be the one and wear the other!

The Roman usage demanded that all who were openly seeking public office should be dressed in white and this, by degrees, led to their designation as candidi, or "wearers of white," derived from the verb candidare, to whiten. It is from the same stem that we obtain the word "candid," a word employed by some of the old English authors in its physical meaning of "white," but which has in ordinary everyday use been transferred to indicate a mental quality, a freedom from bias prejudice or deceit—all of which might be regarded as dark spots upon a character.

It is in its original sense of "white," however, rather than because of its connection with the modern meaning of the word candid, that we derive our word "candidate," and, to be strictly in accord with etymology and custom, no seeker after office should appear unless garbed in clothing of spotless dazzling white.

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

THE FLOOR

"I get so tired of hearing people say it, as they know it won't come to pass," said the floor.

"What are you talking of?" asked the door.

"Whenever people speak of having been embarrassed or having felt shy or having had something out of the ordinary happen they always say that they were so embarrassed that they almost went through the floor."

"I wish I could tell them once and for all time that they can't go through me because they are embarrassed or for any other reason."

"They think they can sink right down through me! Indeed! Well, I'd like to tell them they can't."

"I don't suppose you really need to do that," said the door, "for surely they understand."

"No one ever has gone through you because of embarrassment and surely they understand that. What they doubtless mean is that they felt so embarrassed that they almost did something quite impossible."

"It is only a very extreme way they have of speaking."

"Perhaps," said the floor, "but then I'd like to tell them what I think. I really would like to do that, door."

"I think they know," said the door.

Now the floor was the floor of a bird shop and the floor was used to having many people pass over it, for so many people came in to shop.

"I should think," said the door, "that the birds would think it was strange, after they were taken home

"For a Few Moments."

by anyone who had bought them here, to see anyone sit down quietly.

"For how people do rush by this shop. They are always rushing and hurrying. They are always dashing some place or other, and they go by—oh, so many of them—and all of them hurrying."

"It is true that some of them do stop here and stand still for a few moments and look at the birds and the parakeet and the monkeys."

"But still, they do not seem to be quiet for very long. They always go rushing on again."

"I can't understand this rushing that creatures do," said the floor.

"Of course I can't understand it very well, either," said the door, "though I do enjoy going back and forth a bit myself."

"I don't," said the floor. "Once I'm in a certain spot I stay."

"I'm not discontented. I'm quite satisfied. I'm a floor and I like to stay still."

"I don't want to go to one place and then to another. I have no such desire at all."

"I see these people rushing and I feel them hurrying over me, and I say to myself:

"How thankful I am that I am a floor. I have no desire to hurry."

"To stay in one place suits me."

"Yes, door, there are some creatures who always want to be moving about. They go to one place and then to another. They aren't satisfied staying still and behaving quietly."

"But the floor is satisfied. Nor does the floor wish to see what is going on."

"The windows like to see what their neighbors are doing and who is walking down the street. But not the floor. The floor doesn't bother about anything else."

"And the floor doesn't mind if it is trampled upon. The floor is uncomplaining and sensible."

"My only complaint is that I don't like people to say that they almost went through me with embarrassment, because they couldn't do it, and they know it. It is ridiculous of them to say they almost did such a thing. They couldn't do it at all, at all."

"The chairs don't mind being set upon, but the floor is the best of all because it doesn't mind being trampled upon and it is always so contented to stay where it is put and not go rushing about wildly all the time."

Had Experience.

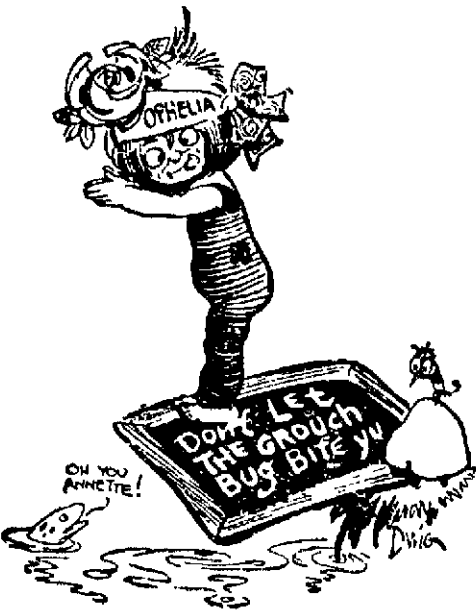

The class was particularly alert that afternoon and Miss Scraggem beamed. But, as is often the case, when the teacher relaxed her iron rule the children began to get out of hand.

"Now, Willie," said Miss Scraggem, "if you had four pennies and Jamie had five, and you took his and put them to yours, what would that make?"

Willie glanced at Jamie, a big-boned, aggressive-chinned Scots lad.

"Trouble!" he said, with conviction.

Storm Country Polly

MARCUS MACKENZIE.

SYNOPSIS.—Occupying a dilapidated shack in the Silent City, a squatter settlement near Ithaca, New York, Polly Hopkins lives with her father, small Jerry, and an old woman, Granny Hope. On an adjacent farm, Oscar Bennett, prosperous farmer, is a neighbor. He is secretly married to Evelyn Robertson, supposedly wealthy girl of their neighborhood. Polly alone knows their secret. Oscar is a thoroughgoing villain. He is tired of his wife and has his eye on the pretty squatter girl, with her radiant eyes and her tumbling curls. And of course Polly would fight like a wildcat if Oscar so much as laid hands on her.

One day Polly had found her sick in bed, and, as she had led the forlorn billy goat home, so did she bring Granny Hope, never realizing that in the tottering old figure she was entertaining an angel unaware. All she knew was that Granny's toothless smile, her cheerful words of love and kindness, made the sun shine brighter and the meager food more filling.

During the winter, Mrs. Hope had encouraged the girl to read. At first that had been difficult, for the shanty contained nothing but the tattered Bible the old woman had brought with her. Over and over Polly had read the miseries of Job the patient, the long lamentations of Jeremiah, who always put her in mind of Daddy Hopkins; and she also knew by heart the story of the crucifixion of Jesus, who, so the Bible said, was the best man that had ever walked the globe.

So had those winter days of close companionship with the woman who had lived long and suffered much, and who now was almost ready to on to larger experiences, brought out in Polly Hopkins a greater capacity for loving. The squatters called her "Pollyop, the love-lass," and sometimes, "Polly of the sun." Granny Hope explained this by saying: "They all love you, Polly, an' it's out of your own heart they get the feelin' of joy when they see ye."

From behind the wood-box near where the goat stood, Pollyop took up an ax. Tenderly she bent and placed a kiss upon the goat's horny head. Then she touched Granny Hope.

The woman lifted her lids and smiled at the girl.

"What's the matter, love-lass?" she murmured.

"I'm goin' out, Granny," replied Polly. "If Daddy comes, tell 'im I'll be back in a while."

Into the rain she went, her bare feet carrying her swiftly over the ragged rocks, her curls gathered under her chin like a warm glistening hood. When later she appeared in front of the shanty, her gingham skirt was filled with rusty pangs and old pieces of tin. She placed them on the doorstep, and looking hesitatingly at the willow tree, went back into the house.

From a peg Polly took a pair of her father's trousers and clambered into them, rucking her skirts out of sight and rolling up the trouser legs, for Daddy Hopkins was much taller than his daughter. Into one of the big pockets Polly thrust a handful of nails. It was a grotesque looking girl who a few minutes later was flattening out the pans and the old bits of tin upon the stone.

When that was finished, she gathered them up and, ax in hand, climbed into the willow tree and onto the roof. Daddy Hopkins would be glad when he came home and found the shack dry and warm. Then she began her task of hammering the pieces of tin over the holes through which the water dripped. Once in a while she stopped working, and, flat on her stomach, sought for smaller cracks.

Just as she had mended the last hole, she heard the sound of horses' hoofs and men's voices. With the fear of the persecuted, she crouched close to the roof, and like some frightened animal, crawled to the edge of it. Squatters did not speak like that, neither did they ride horseback.

There in the lane, astride two magnificent animals, were two men. One she recognized instantly. Polly had every reason to know the tall man whose dark, handsome face had cast deep shadows over the Silent City. Marcus MacKenzie had been for years the Nemesis that hung over the Cayuga lake squatters. Even during his absence on war work abroad, his long arm had often reached back to the Silent City to pick away some husband and close the prison gates behind him.

Pollyop had a passionate desire to throw the ax at him. She knew there was not a heart in all the Silent City that did not beat with dread at the very mention of his name.

Then she caught a glimpse of the other man's face and forgot her terror of Marcus MacKenzie. In Ithaca and about it she had seen many soldiers but never anyone like MacKenzie's companion. He was dressed in an officer's uniform, and, as his horse whirled him into better view, the frown faded from Pollyop's brow as she gazed wonderingly upon him. She marked his flashing glances that swept the Silent City. She noted with a strange little thrill the beauty of the clearcut features, the full, kindly mouth and the smooth, tanned skin.

Marcus MacKenzie was speaking rapidly, and though Polly could not hear what he said, she knew he was talking of the squatters. Then words that made her tingle with joy came distinctly to her ears.

"But you can't turn a lot of folks out of their homes, Marc," rang forth a deep, rich voice. "Where under the heaven would they go if you did?"

"Anywhere they d—n please," snarled MacKenzie contemptuously. "If they were all dead, they'd be better off, and Ithaca too."

Polly's hand tightened on the ax-handle. To let it fly straight into the face of the baughty Ithacan would have been satisfaction indeed!

"Have you tried to buy them out?" asked the other.

"No, and I don't intend to," was the sharp retort. "They'll go because I'll make them go, that's all. I've been too busy for the last two years to make much of a dent among them, but now I'm home for good, I mean to clear them off." An outward gesture of the officer's hand told Polly he was not in sympathy with MacKenzie's threat. "You can't judge of the situation, Bob," Marcus went on, "because you've been gone for years. Evelyn can tell you what they are, though."

The speaker wheeled his horse and pointed his riding whip straight at the Hopkins' shanty; and Polly's curly head drew quickly back.

"One of the worst of them lives there!" she heard plainly. "He's sort of a mayor of the settlement. Jeremiah Hopkins! And such a tribe as that but holds can't be found anywhere else in this county. A worthless, tangle-haired girl and a boy half in the grave, and I heard only this morning they're harboring a bag by the name of Hope. They live like pigs, too."

It Was a Grotesque Looking Girl Who a Few Minutes Later Was Flattening Out the Pans and the Old Bits of Tin Upon the Stone.

"The poor things haven't much of a chance to live otherwise, have they, Marc?" The question evidently required no answer. "Well, what do you think of that?" he went on. Then he read aloud: "If your heart is loving and kind, come right in. If it ain't, scoot off." Why, that's beautiful!

The warm, velvety brown the rich man's threats had made a hard glare was brought back to Polly's eyes by these words. She could have hugged the speaker as hard as she sometimes did Daddy Hopkins!

"Rubbish!" sneered MacKenzie. "Perfect rot! Your aunt was saying this morning that the Hopkins girl is as odd as she is filthy. The very idea of having a thing like that hung up!"

Polly saw the younger man reach out and touch the speaker with a gloved hand.

"Love isn't rubbish, wherever you find it, old chap!" he exclaimed. "It gives even a squatter shack a glimpse of heaven. You ought to help these people, Marc. Give them a chance; make something of them, and they won't bother you."

Burning tears filled Polly's eyes. To hear him speak in sympathy with her fishermen friends touched her deeply. And he had spoken of love in the same way Granny Hope did, too. Pollyop had never imagined Old Marc's kind ever thought of the meek—the lowly—and the hungry. Far above the world, up in the skies beyond the clouds where the blue was, right alongside the crucified Savior, Polly Hopkins placed this new friend of the Silent City. Her thoughts were interrupted by MacKenzie speaking.

Polly lost the rest of his sentence. Back and yet farther back she slipped over the roof. She had never heard anything so dreadful as this. In fact, she had always quite liked pigs, but she had never thought of comparing the shanty or Granny Hope and Daddy Hopkins to a barnyard and its occupants.

She heard the men ride away; and once more she sat up. By raising her body a little, she could see them walking their horses along the road that led its crooked way through the settlement.

MacKenzie's straight, thick-set figure made her shudder, but the slim, boyish one beside him brought a queer little thrill to her heart.

"He's a beautiful angel himself," she murmured, and taking up the ax, she slipped down the tree and dropped to the wet ground. Granny Hope straightened up as Polly entered the kitchen. Swiftly the girl crawled out of her father's trousers and tossed back her curls.

"What's the matter, pretty brat?" queried the woman drowsily.

"I got to find Daddy," replied Polly, her voice shaking. "Old Marc's back an' he's after us squatters a-flyin' an', Granny—"

She paused, her face softened, and she smiled.

"Yep, honey?" prompted Mrs. Hope.

"Old Marc had a beautiful angel with him," went on the girl, "an' he likes us squatters. He stood right up to that rotten MacKenzie. I heard him, I did." She crossed to the old woman's side. "Love's able to send a angel slapbang down to this old earth to help us, huh, Granny Hope?"

"Yep, sure—sure, honey-girl," murmured Granny, and once more her head bobbed forward, and she slept.

Polly Hopkins crept out of the hut and sped away along the shore toward Bad Man's ravine.

CHAPTER II.

About the time Polly Hopkins began to repair the shack roof, Evelyn Robertson came into the room where her mother sat reading. The girl was dressed to go out and was drawing a pair of gloves over her ringed fingers.

"Where are you going, Eve?" inquired the lady. "It seems to me that you're running out altogether too much. There's your piano! You haven't practiced in months. Now don't blame me, Eve, if, when Marcus asks you to play, you fall flat!"

A dull red ran into the girl's cheeks, but she made no reply as she smoothed the wrinkles from her gloves.

"The good Lord knows," continued the mother irritably, "that I've kept at you enough. Now Marc and Robert are home, how are you going to entertain them? Men demand so much."

The experiences of the past two years had taught Evelyn that lesson. It had been demand, demand and more demanding ever since, on girlish impulse, she had secretly married Oscar Bennett.

"And you heard what Marcus said last night about the Silent City folks," went on Mrs. Robertson. "What you want of that Hopkins girl I don't understand. Marcus says her father is the most dangerous man among the lot of them, and the girl herself is queer."

"Oh, don't talk about the squatters all the time," cried Evelyn. "I hate the very sound of the word. What's Polly Hopkins, anyway? . . . Now Marcus is home—"

"Darling," the mother interrupted eagerly, "it has always been my hope that you and Marc would grow to care for each other. He is so rich and so handsome! Now, isn't he?"

A groan almost leapt from Evelyn's lips. What a fool she had been! Here she was married to a man she loathed, a man she was ashamed of! The realization that another man, rich, good-looking and in every way desirable, had turned his serious eyes upon her, almost made her blurt out the whole story to her mother; but having kept silent so long, she dared not speak now. All through the night she had tossed and turned, hunting some way to get Oscar Bennett out of her life without Marcus MacKenzie knowing anything about it. She dared not go to Oscar himself; Polly Hopkins was the only hope she had. All Bennett cared for was money. He was as tired of her as she was of him. Perhaps he would go away quietly and set her free if she gave him money enough. Would her mother give it to her?

"Mother, do you honestly want me to marry Marc?" she asked, trembling. Mrs. Robertson caught at the out-flung hand.

"I do, I do indeed, darling," she answered. "And he'll ask you too, I'm sure. Perhaps not today or tomorrow, for he's just renewing his acquaintance with you. By the way he looked last night I could tell he was considering it."

A handkerchief dropped from Evelyn's fingers, and she stooped to pick it up.

"If I lead Marcus on," she suggested, rising, "and—get him to ask me to marry him, will you give me any sum of money I want?"

Her voice shook with emotion, and her young face seemed suddenly old and haggard. Mrs. Robertson had never seen her daughter in such a state.

"Sit down a minute, Evelyn," she commanded. "Now tell me what you want money for. I know very well that you haven't spent what I've allowed you upon yourself. That's why I've refused you so much lately. No more secrets or mystery! I want the facts. Now tell me this minute."

The girl dropped into a chair and buried her face in her hands.

"I can't," she whispered. For some time she remained in the same attitude, while her mother studied her silently. At length the girl lifted herself erect.

"I can't explain," she broke out, "and I suppose you're thinking all kinds of things. I can't help it if you do. You'll have to give me the money I need, if you want me to marry Marc. There's no 'ifs' and 'ands' about that. If you'll give me the money"—she faltered, wiped her lips and concluded slowly, "I'll marry Marcus MacKenzie."

"You must be crazy, Eve," Mrs. Robertson said in a cold voice, "to talk to me like that. If you have any secrets from me, it's time you told them."

"Well?" shot from Evelyn sharply. "Suppose I have? It's my secret, isn't it? Are you going to help me or not, that's the question."

It was evident to Mrs. Robertson that the situation was not to be trilled with. In a twinkling her daughter had changed from a meek and timid girl to an aggressive woman. To try to bully her any more would be a mere waste of effort.

"Heavens," she began, "this is a pretty how to do, I must say. I can't imagine why you should want money. It doesn't make much difference, anyway. There are more reasons than one why you can't get it from me."

"What are they?" fell from the girl's lips.

"The first is," returned the mother, furiously, "I don't like being held up in this high-handed manner by my own daughter."

She paused; and Evelyn caught her breath. If that were all, she would row and rage until she got what she wanted.

Mother and daughter were staring at one another, each demanding an explanation. Evelyn did not intend to make any! Mrs. Robertson weakened before the steady blue in the girl's eyes.

Evelyn sprang to her feet and confronted her mother. Her face was drawn into cruel lines, and her hands were gripped spasmodically.

"You lie," she burst forth. "You've always lied to me about money."

A bitter smile drew down the corners of the older woman's mouth. She knew how true the accusation was. "Well, this time," she answered, "I'm telling you the simple truth. I not only do not own this house, but—"

"Then who does own it?" interjected the girl.

"Your cousin, Robert Percival," was the quick response; "and he's supplied all the money we have used. Now perhaps you won't try to get something out of me I haven't got."

"Mother!" cried the girl, in agony.

"I told you, Eve, that you should know the truth," Mrs. Robertson continued. "You've asked for it, and here it is. When Robert's father and mother died, I came here to take care of him. I had nothing then and have nothing now. You were only a baby, and I've always kept the facts from you. When Robert went to war, he arranged that if he didn't come back, I should have the home and enough money to keep us."

Evelyn's eyes widened. Of a surety this was the truth.

"Then we aren't rich?" she demanded huskily.

With a quick gesture Evelyn caught her mother's arm, despair changing the lines on her face.

"Oh, you needn't be so theatrical, my dear," said the woman. "Robert's never given me the slightest reason to feel he thought us a burden. I'm quite like his mother, as I should be. The only thing necessary is that you should feather your own nest before Bob makes up his mind to get married. I know very well you've turned down many a young man in Ithaca. Now your chance has come. Marc MacKenzie's rich. He loves you—"

Without waiting to hear anything more, Evelyn ran out of the room. Mrs. Robertson sank back with a sigh, partly of relief that at last Evelyn knew just the situation they were in, partly of anxiety as to her daughter's secret.

"Bob! Then the soldier in the uniform was Evelyn's cousin!"

The fat butcher was busy arranging Christmas decorations at the back of his counter when a woman asked him what he thought would be the price of Christmas turkeys this year.

"Well, now, you know," he said, "that is something I can't tell. It's just according to the demand."

"But say, you should see the people who come in here, strangers, you know, not regular customers, and they say they want a turkey, and I pick one out. They say it is too big, and I say to them: 'Now how heavy a turkey would you like?' They say: 'I don't know, but I'll take that one.'"

"I take that down and it weighs within a few ounces of what the first one weighed, and then they just mutter something and go out again."

"I tell you what it is, madam; they are fair stagonized—stagonized they be."

True, the word is a new one, but it seemed to be adequately expressive of agony and amazement over the staggering price of the festive bird.—New York Sun.

WHY DRUGGISTS RECOMMEND SWAMP-ROOT

For many years druggists have watched with much interest the remarkable record maintained by Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder medicine.

It is a physician's prescription. Swamp-Root is a strengthening medicine. It helps the kidneys, liver and bladder do the work nature intended they should do.

Swamp-Root has stood the test of years. It is sold by all druggists on its merit and it should help you. No other kidney medicine has so many friends.

Be sure to get Swamp-Root and start treatment at once.

However, if you wish first to test this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper—Advertisement.

The man and the bride were among the 50 or so men and brides awaiting their turn at the marriage bureau in the municipal building.

"I'm half a dollar short," said the man to the city official, who receives the $2 fee. "What'll I do?"

"Sorry I can't help you out, buddy," was the answer, "but the law doesn't permit any rate cutting. You'll have to get the money somehow."

An hour later the man and the bride were back. They had the required $2.

"Where'd you get it?" inquired the city officer. "Borrow from friends?"

"Naw," said the man. "We didn't know nobody to borrow from, so we went out and hocked the wedding ring."—New York Sun.

The new Spring
Fashions
Are Here!

First arrivals always heighten curiosity---indeed these new Spring Costumes do, each one a triumph, so fresh and new in silhouette, in fabric and in garniture. It would be nice to introduce them one by one, much as important guests at famous functions are, for each by its own attractiveness is worthy. But just to tell that the most distinguished of Spring Fashions are here, revealing lines that may be traced to Moyen and Victorian times, trimming notions from the Far East, China, and from the Near East, Russia, fabrics into whose woof and warp is woven the skill of such men as Rodier and Poiret, is now our purpose and to invite you to this exposition of styles beautiful, styles authentic, for Spring of 1922.

NEW SUITS

This and That About Them

It's a story in three parts that the most swagger Tailors tell, a jacket, a skirt and a blouse, though some jackets turn out to be capes and some skirts and blouses join fashion forces and appear as one piece frocks. That's the situation in a nut shell, but you are eager for the smart and telling details. You want to know that soft Kashas and colorful tweeds are favored, that boxed jackets are jauntiest, that stand up collars are perky, that bright colors are frequently introduced and so on and so on---well, come and see them, Suits almost without end.

When fashion prescribes Suits of sports fabrics with boxed jackets the young Miss longs to take possession. And when she does she will find our displays ready for her.

Let Spring Into Your Home

Next to new togs for yourself, choosing new things to brighten up your home promises the most pleasant shopping hours. A gay chintz covered pillow for the comfy chair; new curtains in new Spring patterns, cretonnes, swisses, serims that beckon to Spring breezes, a Japanese print breakfast cloth to make breakfast tastier; a bowl of growing bulbs. You who take such pride in the attractiveness of your home know how effective these little things can be and we know that the Home Furnishing Sections are very completely represented in this Spring Exposition.

Spring Spun Into Fabrics

It is a marvelous art the modern weavers practice, from those exquisite lengths that had from Rodier's studios to the also fascinating Fabrics from our own New England mills. The Woolens, rich and soft, the tweeds and twills, the Crepes more crinkly than ever and just as fashionable, the Taffetas, faille-like in texture, the Sports Silks pursuing novelty and color with abandon. One wonders when before there have been quite so many, so brim full of costume inspiration for the clever woman who designs her own.

Children's and Infants' Display

Not by any means the least attractive of the Spring displays are those for Children and the Infant folk. Everything to outfit from tip to toe is here in assortments that are complete. And never have you seen more interesting styles.

LINGERIE

Though nothing could be finer or more delicate than fine Lingerie one always feels as though they stand on terra firma when broaching this subject to women---they all love pretty underthings so. One feels surer than ever of their ground this Spring in view of displays as large and lovely as these.

COATS--CAPES

Reveal Sport Tendencies

The Cape's the thing, it's seen on every hand where fashionably costumed women gather, but not just "any" Cape will do. Certain things stand out among the elect of style. Fabrics, just the softest most serviceable sort, the sports materials tweeds and homespuns. The lines are after comfort's pattern, gathered at the shoulder or circularly cut. And such features as stand up collars, scarf throws, fringed finishes, place Capes on heights of style distinction. Coats of soft woolens take to mannish lines and the enjoyment of possessing such a Coat should hasten you on to your selection.

NECKWEAR

Neckwear from perky pique sets to lacy vestees of filet and Irish composes one of the Store's most bewitching displays, a place you surely must visit as soon as you know the necklines of your new frocks.

GLOVES

Gloves aren't the biggest item in a complete costume repertoire, but for Spring they show such novelty that one may say. "Having been faithful in little things the important role of giving accent to ones whole appearance may be left to them."

VEILS

It's an ill wind that blows nobody any good and the ones who will profit by this Spring's breezes are the clever women who seize the opportunities they offer to wear crisp Veils from this assortment.

FROCKS

In Many Guises--All Smart

Varying as to details but with a single thought---to fashion Frocks distinctively smart has been the creed of designers for Spring. A bouffant taffeta in quaint basque style, a crisply cut street Frock of Crepe Knit whose upper half is made of Canton Crepe. How different each is from the other, yet how individually good looking, portraying the brilliant fashion ideas of great designers and promising the well-dressed woman a distinctiveness that less exclusive styles could never give.

Sweet sixteen and looking even more winsome will be easy in these quaintly bouffant taffetas, and for every day are Jerseys in Billie style.

Blouses and Skirts

Make such charming Spring debuts that they will be unconditionally admitted to the wardrobes, even drawing rooms, of smartly dressed women. First the Blouses; they have called a wealth of Old World artistry their own, especially the ones of white Crepe de Chine so quaintly embroidered in bright colors after Bulgarian peasant motifs.

Skirts deserted pleats when their designers first set eyes on something different, something newer---Skirts that fit the hips snugly and drape gracefully toward one side whether fashioned of silk or the rich woolens.

Garments Individually Suited

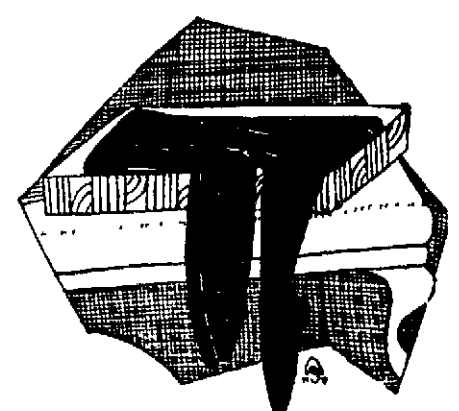

During their trips to the great fashion centers to select the costumes that make up this Spring Exposition, our buyers, kept prominently in mind the varying preferences and requirements of our patrons. This means you will find garments here chosen as individually suited to you as though exclusively created for you by leading designers.

Stout Apparel

Has been made a feature of the Spring Exposition because its designers have created costumes exactly as attractive and becoming as in the smaller sizes.

Loose panels and beading make Frocks decidedly good looking, and sports lines so fashionable for Spring make the new Coats and Suits becoming to larger women.

HOSIERY

Limited to space as Hosiery is because of longer skirts, many things would just have made the best of circumstances. Hosiery has made the most of them, revealing smart new shades in sheer weaves and exceedingly swagger wool sports models.

EIGHT-STORY BUILDING PLANNED FOR GETTYSBURG

Tentative plans for the construction of an 8-story modern hotel in Gettysburg were presented Saturday afternoon at a luncheon in the Hotel Gettysburg. It was estimated the structure would cost approximately $1,000,000. Twenty-five business men
of that town heard the proposition explained by Wm. Grenoble, formerly of Gettysburg, now resident manager
of the William Penn Hotel in Pittsburg, and S. L. Waller, architect and construction engineer, of New York.
Mr. Grenoble and Mr. Waller represent Pittsburgh Hotel men, who, it is said, are able to finance the proposition to a large extent and are desirous of placing a hotel in Gettysburg.

Tentative plans call for a structure
in which would be located 200 rooms with baths, a convention hall with a seating capacity of 1,500 and a number of store rooms on the ground floor. It is pointed out that such a hotel would not only attract tourists, but would make Gettysburg a resort
town as well as a mecca for sightseers. From the interest shown by the men present there is little doubt that the proposition will be considered further.

To determine public sentiment on the proposition of erecting a new hotel in Gettysburg, a town meeting will be held in the near future.

On Friday evening, March 17, in the
P. O. S. of A. theatre, East Berlin, a pageant, "The Striking of America's Hour", will be given by a cast of 50
people under the auspices of the Women's Missionary Society of Trinity Lutheran church, East Berlin. This pageant has been given at some of the summer conferences and is worth going to see. They will also be assisted by Mrs. Estie Garrett, reader.

A large plot of land immediately
east of Gettysburg on the Hanover road is being divided into building lots and will shortly be offered for sale.

The Salant & Salant cutting factory received two carloads of goods at the East Berlin factory last week.

Lloyd Phillips moved from Franklin-
town to East Berlin last week.

Any breaking out of the skin, even fiery, itching eczema, can be quickly
overcome by applying a little Men-tho-Sulphur, says a noted skin specialist. Because of its germ destroying properties, this sulphur preparation instantly brings ease from skin irritation, soothes and heals the eczema right up and leaves the skin clear and smooth.

It seldom fails to relieve the torment
and disfigurement. Sufferers from skin trouble should get a little jar
of Mentho-Sulphur from any good

CASH PLAN ELIMINATED

Unanimous agreement on a compromise soldiers bonus bill was reached Friday by House Ways and Means committee Republicans. The revised measure, however, still has a long road to travel before it reaches the statute books. As now drawn the bill provides for cash payments only to those men whose adjusted service pay would not exceed $50 and these four optional features: Adjusted service certificates with an added loan provision which would enable the men to obtain immediately from bank a sum equal to 50 per cent. of the adjusted service pay; vocational training, home and farm aid and land settlement. The face value of the certificate would be the amount of the adjusted service pay plus 25 per cent. plus interest at 4 per cent. compounded annually. The adjusted service pay would be on the basis of $1 a day for domestic service and $1.25 a day for overseas service.

The Pneumonia Month.—March is a tor, the system loses much of its regularity pneumonia month and usually gives a high rate of mortality for the disease. After a long and hard winter, resistance and people grow careless. When every cold, no matter how slight, is given prompt and intelligent attention, there is much less danger of pneumonia. It should be born in mind that pneumonia is a germ disease and breeds in the throat. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is an expectorant and cleans out the germ laden mucus and not only cures a cold but prevents its resulting in pneumonia. It is pleasant to take. Children take it willingly.

After being unaccounted for since the middle of last month, John S. Byrne, secretary of the Carlisle Y. M. C. A., who was thought to have been a victim of foul play, telegraphed his wife that he had suffered a loss of memory while visiting in New York and found himself in Los Angeles. Although the association directors found no shortage in his account, they declared his office vacant. Byrne will return, his wife stated.

An epidemic of pink eye has developed in St. Mary's parochial school, McSherrystown. A number of pupils were sent home so as to prevent the disease from spreading. As high as ten pupils out of one room have been afflicted with the inflammation which is contagious but not dangerous.

FIVE YEARS IN PEN

Monday Judge McPherson sentenced Edward Irvin, confessed burner of the barn on the farm of Frank A. Newell, Butler township, on December 31, to not less than 5 years nor more than 7 years in solitary confinement at hard labor in the Eastern Penitentiary. Irvin made no comment and was turned over to the sheriff. The fire which completely destroyed the barn and contents caused an estimated loss of $3,000. Mr. Newell carried $1,000 insurance on the property but nothing on the stock and contents. The fire started at noon while Mr. Newell was in Gettysburg. The police spent a night at the Newell home and in the morning arrested Irvin, a tramp hireling. Irvin was placed in the Adams county jail and on February 6 a signed confession was wrung from him by two members of the State police. At that time Irvin gave as his reason for burning the barn the fact that he believed Newell bore him a grudge. Irvin also told in his confession he would get even with Newell by burning his barn because he thought Newell had no insurance on the property. Irvin related in his confession how he entered the cow stable about noon and threw a lighted match in the straw.

IN MEMORIAM

In sad and loving remembrance of our dear boy, who departed this life, three years ago, March 1919. Alas! it is now three long years. Since I have seen my little boy; And many, many are the tears, I shed while others sleep. In the quiet graveyard yonder, Is a little grassy mound; There is where my darling Elwood, Sweetly sleeps under the ground. Some may think I have forgot him. But I never, never can; And many a time I think I hear That sweet voice calling mother. Often when the days are brightest, There is a gloom steals o'er my heart; Then it brings its sad remembrance, Of the day we had to part. But God knew what was best, When he called him home to rest; He is free from earth's temptations. And is forever blest.

—By his Mother, Mrs. C. I. Bentzel.

The Telephone Pole is a fruitful tree.

On its angular branches are bright, crystal apples, and the wires they bear aloft are the pathways of the world's conversation. They tell of the birth of a baby across the street or of the death of a monarch half way around the world.

The stately trunks of cedar and chestnut stretch from farm and town and suburb to the larger cities where the burden of wires is too great for poles, and the lines are underground.

To carry all of the telephone wires of a great city overhead would be out of the question. To put all wires underground in the less densely populated places would be just as impracticable, for it would make the cost of the service prohibitive.

Ideal telephone service should give to every subscriber, whether in city, town or country, quick communication to near or distant points in the most economical manner.

It is such an ideal that the men and women of the Bell Telephone System have constantly in view. Something new—whether it be developed in Sacramento or Kalamazoo—is immediately available to every other town in the Bell System where it may be introduced to advantage.

IN MEMORIAM
In loving remembrance of George S. Wildasin, who died March 8, 1917. Five years have gone, dear father, And we miss you more and more; But some day perhaps we'll meet you, On that bright and happy shore. You are not forgotten, father dear, Nor will you ever be;

As long as life and memory lasts, I will remember thee.
One by one the Lord will call us, As our labor here is done; And when we cross the river, We may meet them one by one, Gone but not forgotten.
—By his daughter,
Mrs. Mervin Haverstock.

GOOD FINANCIAL REPORT
Adams county, for the first time in a quarter of a century, completed a year with a balance on hand and no floating indebtedness. This statement is made by the auditors, who are now completing their work. The balance on hand amounted to $29,055.58. In addition to heavy expense met during the year, $53,000 in outstanding loans was paid. The expenses included $70,667 for new bridges and $3,087 for repairs to old ones, while over $32,000 additional was required for redeeming bonds and paying state tax on outstanding issues.

The county commissioners have issued a letter to all tax collectors in the county requesting early action on taxes due and stating that a wrong impression has been existing among some people concerning the liability of women for the payment of taxes, and in which it is pointed out that there is no difference in the obligation. However, the tax collectors are told that no levying shall be made on personal property in the case of women who are too poor to pay, and it is further said that no imprisonment for taxes would be made in the case of women, even if that were possible under the law.

An appropriation for $7,500 was made to the sinking fund for the redemption of bonds during the year and in addition to this $10,000 in bonds of the 1906 issue were redeemed. The interest and state tax on existing bonds amounting to $15,167.50 was met and paid during the year and the commissioners have a balance in the sinking fund of $11,181.25 for the redemption of bonds which come to maturity in the near future.

Gettysburg Fire Company recommended the name of Walter Sterner as Fire Marshall for the coming year and he was unanimously elected by Council.

Banner Lye

is easy to use

No other lye is packed so safely and conveniently, or is so economical—not a bit wasted.

so easily and thoroughly as Banner Lye. It is not old-style lye. Odorless and colorless;
the greatest cleanser and disinfectant the your kitchen, cellar, sinks, dairy, milk-pans and bottles, for softening water, and the labor of washing and cleaning will be cut in half.

and saves money besides. A can of Banner Lye, 5½ pounds of kitchen grease, and a minutes' easy work (no boiling or large quantities), and you have 10 pounds of best hard soap or 20 gallons of soft soap.
Banner Lye is sold by your grocer or druggist.

GLASS OF SALTS IF YOUR KIDNEYS HURT

Eat less meat if you feel Backache or have Bladder trouble—Salts
fine for Kidneys.

Meat forms uric acid which excites
and overworks the kidneys in their efforts to filter it from the system. Regular eaters of meat must flush the kidneys occasionally. You must relieve them like you relieve your bowels; removing all the acids, waste and poison, else you feel a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sour, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment; the channels often get irritated, obliging you to get up two or three times during the night.
To neutralize these irritating acids
and flush off the body's urinous waste get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine and bladder disorders disappear. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys and stop bladder irritation.
Jad Salts is inexpensive; harmless and makes a delightful effervescent lithiawater drink which millions of men and women know and then, thus avoiding serious illness and bladder diseases.

LADIES! LOOK YOUNG, DARKEN GRAY HAIR

Use the Old-time Sage Tea and Sulphur and Nobody
Will know.

Gray hair, however handsome, denotes advancing age. We all know the advantages of a youthful appearance. Your hair is your charm. It makes, or mars the face. When it turns, turns gray and looks streaked,
it is a few applications of Sage Tea
and Sulphur enhances its appearance
a hundred-fold.
Don't stay gray! Look young!
Prepare the recipe at home or get from any drug store a bottle of
"Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," which is merely the old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients. Thousands of folks recommend this ready-to-use preparation, because it darkens the hair beautifully, besides, no one can possibly tell as it darkens so naturally and evenly. You moisten a sponge or soft brush with it, drawing this through
the hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application
or two, its natural color is restored
and it becomes thick, glossy and lustrous, and you appear years younger.
Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite.
It is not intended for the cure, miti-

OLD-TIME COLD CURE— DRINK HOT TEA!

Get a small package of Hamburg
Breast Tea at any pharmacy. Take a tablespoonful of the tea, put a cup of boiling water upon it, pour through a sieve and drink a teaspoon full at any time during the day or before retiring.
It is the most effective way to break
a cold and cure grip, as it opens the
pores of the skin, relieving congestion.
Also loosens the bowels, thus breaking up a cold.

Try it the next time you suffer from a cold or the grip. It is inexpensive and entirely vegetable, therefore safe
and harmless.

RUB RHEUMATISM FROM STIFF ACHING JOINTS

Rub Soreness from joints and muscles
with a small trial bottle of old
St. Jacobs Oil

Stop "dosing" Rheumatism.
It's pain only; not one case in fifty requires internal treatment. Rub soothing, penetrating "St. Jacobs Oil" right on the "tender spot," and by the time
you say Jack Robinson—out comes the rheumatic pain. "St. Jacobs Oil" is a harmless rheumatism cure which never disappoints and doesn't burn the skin. It takes pain, soreness and stiffness from aching joints, muscles and bones; stops sciatica, lumbago, backache, neuralgia.

Limber up! Get a 35 cent bottle of old-time, honest "St. Jacobs Oil" from any drug store, and in a moment you'll be free from pains, aches and stiffness. Don't suffer! Rub rheumatism away.

Don't borrow your neighbor's paper
when you can have it sent to you for

HEALING CREAM QUICKEST RELIEF FOR HEAD COLDS

Colds and catarrh yield like magic to soothing, healing, antiseptic cream that penetrates through every air passage
and relieves swollen, inflamed membranes of nose and throat. Your clogged nostrils open right up and you can breathe freely. Hawking and snuffling stop. Don't stay stuffed up and miserable.

Get a small bottle of Ely's Cream
Balm from your druggist. Apply a little in the nostrils and get instant relief. Millions endorse this remedy

WILL DISCUSS HATCHING AND REARING OF CHICKS

The mid-winter meetings of the Poultry program adopted by the Farm
Bureau will be conducted by P. L.
Sanford, of State College. The principle subject to be discussed at this time will be the hatching and rearing
of chicks. Nearby meetings will take place at the time and place as follows:
Tuesday—10 a. m., Farm Bureau office, 1:30 p. m., Boyer's Store, York
Springs; 7:30 p. m., Locust Grove
Schoolhouse, Aspers; Wednesday—10
a. m., Wm. Brough Farm, East Berlin;
1:30 p. m., Abbottstown Hotel, Ab-
bottstown; Thursday—10 a. m., Hotel
Oxford, New Oxford; 1:30 p. m., Chas.
Weikert, Littlestown, R. D.; 7:30 p. m., Barlow Community Meeting.

The black sucker, a fish well worth
the catching and the eating in early spring time, and against which there are no laws as to either limit or size, is to be raised on a large scale by the Pennsylvania Department of Fisheries. Commissioner N. R. Butler now has men out taking the adult fish from which the first large lot will be hatched. Sucker fishing is becoming popular in the state with those who like
to get their lines in the water in the spring before the laws allow the taking of game fish.

Found a Cure for Indigestion.—I use Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets for indigestion and find they suit my case better than any dyspepsia remedy I have ever tried and I have used many different medicines.
I am nearly fifty one years of age and have suffered a great deal from indigestion. I can eat almost anything I want to, now," writes George W.
Emory, Rock Mills, Ala. These tablets contain no poison but strengthen the stomach and enable it to digest
the food naturally.

General W. M. Ireland, of Washington, D. C., surgeon general of the United States Army, has been announced as the orator for Gettysburg college commencement on June 14.
Dr. C. H. Parkhurst, of New York, noted metropolitan clergyman, will preach the baccalaureate sermon on the Sunday preceding commencement.

Transportation of liquor in Pennsylvania by automobiles or auto-trucks was forbidden Friday in a ruling by Prohibition Director Davis, who said that all shipments of liquor must be made by freight or express.
The ruling the prohibition director said, "strikes a blow at the heart of the bootlegging trade."

The Solomon Rudisill farm, in Manheim township, will be filled by Mr.
Schrum, of Littlestown.

HOW WIDE ARE WE?

Every woman, and man too, has wondered at least once in life who it is that prescribes the width of chairs
at the theatres and on the cars and so on. And wondered also what lunatic
it was who set the standard at just so many inches.

There is real reason for this wonder. All men and women may be created equal—but they certainly vary
in certain proportions as they grow older. Particularly do they grow different in the physical machinery used in the necessary operation of sitting down. Despite this fact, whoever it is that decides the width of seats goes
right on doing it as though every man and woman was turned out by one pattern.

This long grievance of a long suffering public blazed on recently at the wedding of Princess Mary of England to the Viscount Lascelles. And in this case it was not folk who had long suffered the restraints of standardized seats, but scores of the nobles
and peeresses of England who all their lives had never been forced to sit in narrower places than their width demanded for comfort. Wide and comfortable chairs these ladies had at their castles, timousines of breadth and so on. Their wealth had made it possible for them never, in a way of speaking, to feel the pinch
that lesser people did.

Then the Duke of Atholl was picked out to make the arrangements for seating them at Westminster Abbey
to see the wedding ceremony. The Duke looked over the ground, also the lists of the peeresses invited. By a simple mathematical calculation he divided one by the other. The result was a sixteen-inch wide chair for each peeress to sit on.

But—Ah, there was one. What happened when those noble ladies learned they were supposed to sit side by side like sardines, each on a sixteen-inch chair, makes perhaps the most amusing and interesting incident of the whole royal wedding.

Any one who has ever felt like lurching the genius who prescribes the width of public chairs for us will miss a real treat if they do not look at the pictures and read the story of the Duke of Atholl's tragic error and what happened after it in the New York Sunday American next Sunday.

Beautiful Spring Suits and Frocks that Will Appeal to Woman's Fancy

in Women's Suits, Frocks and Wraps.

Exquisite and Charming are two adjectives that ably express the feeling that women possess for the New Spring Styles.

That is the general opinion of those women who are noted for their excellent discrimination in their wearing apparel.

In blend, in coloring and tasteful styling we do not believe we have ever shown such an inspiring selection. The utmost in artistic fashionable is combined with reasonable and sensible expenditure.

WAISTS

The new Spring Shirt Waists are also very beautiful this season while the prices are very reasonable.

MIDDIES

Jack-Tar-Tod Middies are more popular than ever before. Both attractive and serviceable.

LITTLESTOWN-GETTYSBURG ROAD ALONE TO BE BUILT

A stretch of 5 miles will be resurfaced on the Gettysburg-Littlestown road during the coming summer. Plans are now completed to begin the work about April 1 and according to district engineer Frame, 7 months will be needed to finish rebuilding this stretch. This will necessitate some detouring on this road during the summer months but when finished it will be the equal of any concrete road in the county, it is said. The same process of construction will be adopted as used on the Lincoln Highway between Abbottstown and York. The present surface of the road and part of the roadbed is plowed up and new bottom substituted. Part of this road for a few miles outside of Littlestown has already been reconstructed. When Mr. Frame announced the construction of this road, he also stated that it would be the only work done in this county during the summer except the regular maintenance work of the department.

Some years ago he was dragged around a field by a runaway mule when his foot caught in the harness as he was dismounting and escaped with minor injuries. One day recently he again escaped death by a close margin when a large log, which he was attempting to load on a wagon by the aid of horses, rolled backward when the chain tore. Mr. Kinter was in the path of the log which rolled over him striking his shoulder and dislocating some of the ligaments. Fortunately he was thrown under the skids as the log struck him and his head was thus saved from being crushed.

THAT MORNING LAMENESS

If you are lame every morning, and suffer urinary ills, there must be a cause. Often it's weak kidneys. To strengthen the weakened kidneys and avert more serious troubles, use Doan's Kidney Pills. You can rely on this man's testimony.

John J. Tawney, 234 Baltimore St., Gettysburg, Pa., says: "I suffered off and on with rheumatic pains and kidney ailments. My back ached constantly and often in the morning I was lame and so stiff I could hardly get out of bed. My kidneys acted irregularly, too. Someone advised me to try Doan's Kidney Pills and I got some. I was surprised at the quick relief I received. I am not bothered by rheumatic pains now and I am much better all around."

FOX HOUND GOES ON BRANDY SPREE

Sneaks Out to Secret Cache and Comes Home With Beautiful Jag.

Charlottesville, Va.—J. A. Lunn, a well-known farmer and fox hunter of this section, was out on a chase Saturday. The next day one of his valued hounds left home of its own accord, returning late in the evening.

Mr. Lunn observed that the dog was acting peculiarly. He thought the animal had been poisoned and examined its eyes for symptoms. About this time he got a whiff of the dog's breath and detected a strong odor of apple brandy on it. Mr. Lunn took the animal to a secret cache and found it had been drinking from a bottle of brandy.

mal in the house and gave it some milk to drink. Then it stretched out by the stove. It did not remain there long before it began to show signs of a jag, which would have been the delight of an old toper. The hound the next day acted as though it had a very bad headache.

Mr. Lunn thinks the dog located the booze the day of the fox chase and kept it to himself, slipping back the next day. He is watching him closely, in the hope that he will lead him to the cache.

WEALTHY YOUTH TRAVELS AS HOBO

Only by Continual Wandering Could St. Louis Man Evade Insane Asylums.

NOW SEEKS FORTUNE
Heir to Millions Works as Dishwasher, Engine Oiler, Roustabout, Sailor, Soldier, in Last Nine Years.

St. Louis, Mo.—Frederick VanBlarcom, who is suing in the probate court to regain his freedom and control over the income of his inheritance of several million dollars, has told the story of his activities for the last nine years, when he was either in private or public sanitariums or a fugitive from them. The story includes wanderings over half the world, when, as a hobo, dishwasher in a restaurant, fireman, engine room oiler on deep-water ships, roustabout, sailor in the United States navy, and sergeant in the British expeditionary forces, he attempted to keep secret his identity in an effort to prevent his return to asylums.

VanBlarcom was born June 20, 1885, with the proverbial silver spoon in his mouth. He was the only son and heir of Jacob C. VanBlarcom, president of the Tennessee Central railroad. The boy had everything in his childhood that millions could buy. The elder VanBlarcom died in August, 1908. The estate was left to his widow, who died last March, and has never been finally settled.

Paved His Own Way.
"When my father died in 1908 I was twenty-three years old and attending Washington university," VanBlarcom said. "I immediately left college and attended a business school. I pressed clothes and did bookkeeping at night to earn my way, as I had been left only $1,000 as an immediate bequest from my father. From that time until my mother's death I received no money from her, and when I was adjudged of unsound mind last year my estate amounted to $14,500, which I had accumulated through my own efforts."

HIS ANSWER

"She's suing him for breach of promise."
"Well."
"And the mean thing has entered a vicious defense."
"Vicious?"
"Yes. He has submitted to the court that he is perfectly willing to let a jury of 12 men look at her and decide if any man in his right mind would offer to marry her."

Honest Tenant.

An enterprising and meticulous Londoner wants to live up to the word and letter of his contract, judging by the following "small ad" taken from the London Times:
"Wanted—Ten thousand loathsome black beetles, by a tenant who agreed to leave the premises in the same condition in which he found them."
—Flagler News.

SOME VAMP
She: So she's a vampire in the movies? Why does she work? She's married.
He: Her husband makes her.

Advice.
Boy, remember this advice, Follow it forever: Being smart is always nice, Being hurtful, never.

Lonely Responsibility.
"How many police have you in Crimston Gulch?"
"Only one," replied Cactus Joe.
"One man can't keep order in as big a place as this."
"Don't expect him to. All we want with a police force is to have some one to blame when anything goes wrong."

A Neglected Opportunity.
Mr. Nextdoor—You have nice grounds around your new home. You ought to put a few bird houses in the trees.
Mr. Grabbitall, the Flat Owner—I've thought of that, myself, but I don't know just how to go about it to collect the rent.

Obscurity of Greatness.
"What will be Senator Shortworthy's place in history?"
"That's hard to say. The narrative of the senator's achievements is limited chiefly to the Congressional Record. Since nobody reads that ponderous work now, I'm afraid posterity will be equally negligent."

The Case.
Lecturer—Things have come to a pretty pass when my description of the constellations is made to give way on the program to a so-called dog star.
Stage Manager—Sure, that is a Sirius matter.

BUT NOT LOVE.
He—I love you dearly. When I look at you I can hardly control myself.
She—Isn't it funny? When I look at you I can hardly control myself either.

Languages.
The languages a diplomat should speak On various occasions, are so many That the auditor will vainly seek For the precise significance of any.

Appropriateness.
Penfield—Do you call that work of his high art?
Smere—Well, the hanging committee must have thought so. They skied it.

The Reliable Quantity.
"What, in your opinion, will be the outcome of this big discussion?"
"Well," replied Senator Sorghum, "it is sure to develop a large number of splendid speeches. But you can't be sure of the outcome. All you can rely on is the output."

Nothing Lacking.
"Nifty house you've got there, old man. All modern improvements, I presume."
"Oh, yes, including a complete set of mortgages."

HIS CAR

"I suppose you get a great deal of pleasure out of your car?"
"No, I can't say that I do."
"What's the trouble?"
"The car's all right, but Monday is mother's day to drive it; on Tuesday, the girls want it; Wednesday, I promised to let the boy have it, and Friday and Saturday it has to go in for repairs. Sunday, if I am very good, they let me drive myself."

Slightly Accommodating.

"Your daughter seems to be a strictly modern miss."
"She makes some concessions to old-fashioned ideas," said Mr. Dubwalte.
"How is that?"
"She occasionally permits me to meet some of the young men she runs around with."

Fluency No Advantage.

"Do you speak any foreign language fluently?"
"Not fluently," replied Senator Sorghum. "I find it better to slow down the conversation as much as possible, so I can take time to think things over before committing myself."

Hours and Minutes.

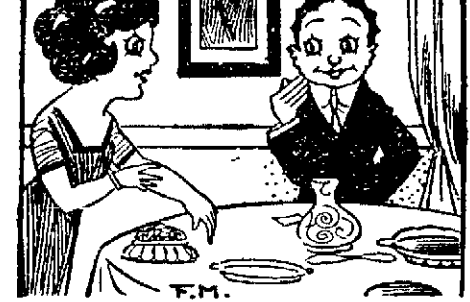

"Your constituents regard you as the man of the hour, do they not?"
"They used to," replied Senator Sorghum. "But at present I'm lucky if they stand for a twenty-minute speech."

Johnny's Raw Joke.

Big Sister—Now, Johnny, we're going to have my gentleman friend to dinner and I want you to eat at the second table.
Johnny—I'd just as soon. Pa says he ain't half-baked, anyway.

Personal Property.

"I am entitled to my own opinions," remarked the positive man.
"Then," murmured Miss Cayenne, "why scatter them about as if you didn't value them?"

TAKING PRECAUTIONS
The Trusting Bride-Elect: Don't you think you'd better engage some plain clothes detectives to see that none of your friends lift any of our wedding presents?
The Happy Man; Sure! And you notify your kid brother that he'll have to give a surety bond before he can act as ring bearer.

Some Little Help.
I cannot answer questions deep. But what from such a task I shrink, I can at least silence keep. And let the real people think.

Good Old Days.
"Do you think we are getting back to the good old days?"
"There isn't a doubt of it," replied Senator Sorghum. "People are going into print with perfect confidence with the same old anecdotes that made me laugh in early childhood."

Giving Her Time.
He—Will you—er—that is, I want to ask—
She—Oh, this is so sudden!
He—Don't get excited, please. I am making it just as slow as I can.

True, Indeed.
Mason—Do you believe in patriotism?
Russell—Oh, yes, patriotism is all right, but so many people mix politics with their patriotism.—Answers.

Giving Him Publicity.
Ethel—Stella is awfully affectionate at times.
Clara—Goodness, yes! She even kisses her husband in public.

Expert Testimony.
Ted—Tom claims to be quite a golf player. What do you think?
Ned—I'd rather wait until I hear what his caddy says.

Ready to Substitute!
She—I'm just going to hug the fire place when we get in the parlor!
He—Why do that? I'm a brick!—Wayside Tales.

All-Day Session.
"There's a man from Florida I want to talk business to, but I'll have to put it off until tomorrow."
"What's the trouble?"
"He has just met a chap from California and they're arguing about climate."

Not Uncommon.
"I don't see how actors can simulate a laugh so heartily."
"Nonsense. Don't we do it every day at funny stories we have heard a dozen times?"

Bookkeeper Grapples With Thief and Holds on Until Foreman Comes to Assistance.

Attleboro, Mass.—Thanks to the courage and determination of Mrs. Amelia Mitchell, a bookkeeper, a series of petty breaks is at an end and Joseph Morgana, nineteen years old, is back in Concord reformatory, serving time for larceny.

Mrs. Mitchell is employed by the R. M. McDonald company, manufacturing jewelers.

Young Morgana entered the office and made respectful application for a job. Mrs. Mitchell went to call a foreman. Returning sooner than she was expected, she surprised the visitor taking possession of $200 in an unlocked safe.

She immediately grappled with the thief, a young man much larger than herself. Despite his desperate attempts to shake her off she clung to him until Irving Hodges, a foreman, came to her aid and subdued young Morgana.

According to the police the boy has admitted stealing money from the waiting room of the Rhode Island hospital in Providence and to entering or attempting to enter three office buildings here.

One of the offices was that of Judge Ralph E. Estes, who tried him and sent him to the reformatory.

Five Bullets. This Old Actor's Last "Hand"

New York.—Once upon a time there was a collie dog that did tricks in the circus. He walked on his hind legs and on his fore paws for applause.

One day he got lost. He went hungry and grew thin. The other day he wandered into a schoolroom at Jamaica and, suddenly finding himself in the presence of spectators, this old trumper immediately began hopping on his hind legs and on his fore paws, expecting—ap—plause.

He got five bullets from a policeman's pistol. Somebody had yelled "Mad dog!"

SAVES HER SEVEN CHILDREN

Mother Makes Four Trips Into Burning House to Rescue Boys and Girls in Bed.

Buffalo, N. Y.—Mrs. Mary Heller saved her seven children from suffocation by making four trips into her burning home. She was barefooted, and had to travel through three inches of snow outside the house.

The woman was awakened by the roaring of flames. She saved three of the children in the first trip. She took them to a barn and wrapped them in blankets to keep them from freezing, then went back and rescued the others.

As a Roustabout With a Circus.

In a car shop in 1910. He then worked as an advertising solicitor for a publishing company, but contracted influenza and was an invalid at home until 1912, when he was forcibly taken to an asylum. He escaped early in 1913 and began his adventures again.

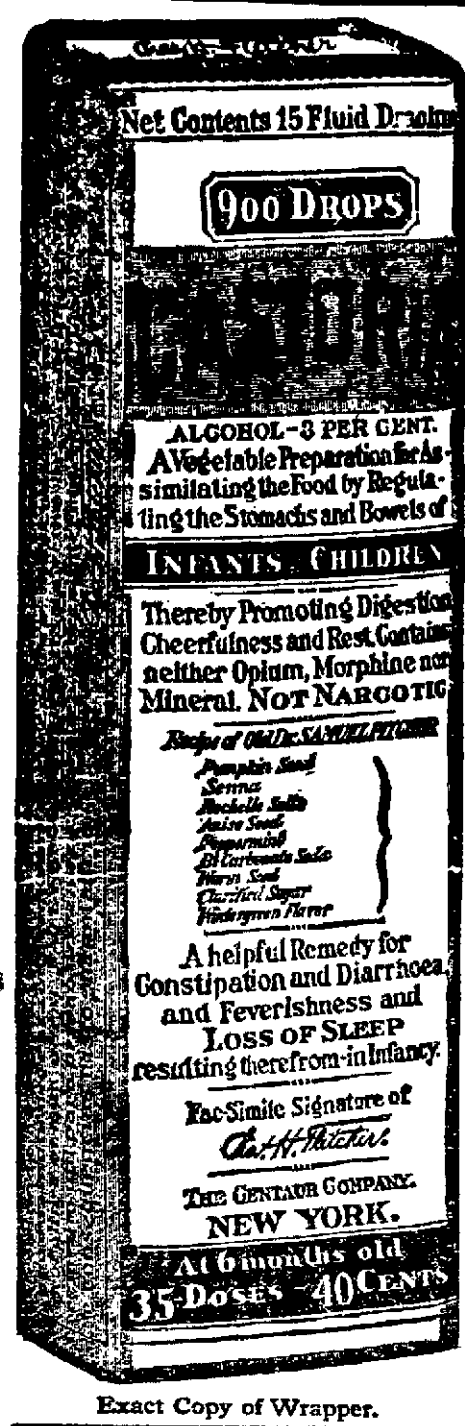

Covered Much Territory.

VanBlarcom walked to Crystal City, Mo., where he worked as a day laborer, later firing an engine to earn his way to Memphis, Tenn. From there he went to Eldorado, Ill., where he secured a job as a roustabout with a circus. He then "hoboed" through several cities to Chicago, where he worked as a deck hand on a lake steamer. He enlisted in the navy at Indianapolis and was sent to Mare Island, Cal., and then to the Philippines.

His identity was discovered there and he deserted and went to Honolulu, where he shipped as a seaman on a British mail steamer. He left the ship at Vancouver, Canada, and beat his way to St. Louis, where he was again placed in an asylum. He was arrested for desertion and sent to a naval hospital at Washington, but escaped and reached New York city, where he shipped as a seaman on a British vessel. He enlisted in London, was sent to France, wounded during a battle in the front line trenches, and later was invalided back to the United States, where, after several confinements in asylums and sanitariums, he finally began his legal battle to regain his fortune.

Boy Went to School in Stolen Cars.

Detroit, Mich.—The theft of eight automobiles to take him to and from school is charged against James Mullen, seventeen years old. It is alleged that he stole a car to take him from Detroit to a nearby town, where he was finishing his course in high school. He would abandon it there. When he wished to return to Detroit he would steal another car for the return trip.

SHOWED RIGHT CIVIC SPIRIT
Interesting Story of How Youngsters Brought About the Regeneration of Their Village.

Twelve boys who started out in a semi-playful mood under the name of "Dirty Dozen" finally were led on until they had cleaned up a whole community of 1,500 people physically and morally. At last their name was changed to "Diligent Dozen."

There was a quiet little mother of one of the twelve hidden behind the scenes, who never appeared publicly to be connected with the affair, but at whose house there was a mysterious generator of brilliant ideas for such boys. The twelve "D's" met both Friday evening and Sunday afternoon for conference, writes William A. McKeever in the Chicago American.

The town cleanup of the boys was worked in accordance with the rules of what we call "good psychology." They met with the proprietors of the main business section, two blocks in length, and agreed to clean up the streets in front of them and keep them clean for a year, provided these men would do likewise with their store fronts and interiors. The general transformation began with a rush. Saturday morning early the dozen were there with sweepers, shovels and wheelbarrows, and by noon the street looked strangely new.

The week following soap, water, paint and putty were brought freely into use on the old store buildings. Old tobacco tags, circus bills and notices of painkillers were raked down and burned. About one-third of the display windows—under the influence of this "revival" were torn out and replaced with plate glass fronts. Many interior improvements followed.

The school buildings and church structures were next attacked by the "D's." The school officials were requested to clean and repair the buildings, and the teacher gave a half-holiday so that pupils might thus review the school yards. The dozen themselves took care of the vacant lots on which the church buildings stood.

MAN'S DUTY TO HOME TOWN

Civic Obligations Are Not Always as Thoroughly Recognized as They Ought to Be.

There is no country in the world in which wealth so generally recognizes its obligations to the public as in America. Vast sums have been devoted to public use, to the great benefit of the public. But municipalities have not figured largely as beneficiaries, though they have to some extent. Indianapolis has by no means been forgotten. And it surely ought to be a pleasure for any person with the right feeling toward the city or town in which he has lived to do something with his money to make life in it happier and pleasanter. The obligation of a man to his town is like that which he owes to his church or his university, and it should be as gladly performed. This feeling is becoming more widely prevalent in Indianapolis, and it will bring results in which all will rejoice. Civic life can be made better, and a proper civic pride developed in this way that will be worth much.—Indianapolis News.

Life in Big City Not Best.

Cream will rise to the surface anywhere, says Mr. Bok, and the institutions of the big city will reach out for their captains only where they find quality. He says of the aspiring youth:

"Let him use the great city as a market in which to buy or sell; to see and profit; let him use it as a place to go for a good time if he chooses. Let him bring back with him the best within it to serve his own community, but leave behind him its turmoil and restlessness that vexes the spirit and makes the young old. Let him think twice and thrice before he raises his children with the ghastly memory of a steam radiator in a city flat."

Which is pretty good advice after all.

City Zoning Spreads.

The chamber of commerce of Kansas City has recently heard the first official presentation of the work of the city planning commission of that city. The chamber has unanimously voted to make an intensive study of zoning principles and co-operate with the city plan commission.

Beauty in Trees.

When a small town starts civic beautification it can count on its trees having already done 50 per cent of the work.

But Not to a Girl.

She—And, Harold! you have never loved any other girl but me?
He—No, my love!
She—Yet somebody told me that you have been engaged once before!
He—Yes, but that was to a widow.

Taste is a matter of tobacco quality

We state it as our honest belief that the tobaccos used in Chesterfield are of finer quality (and hence of better taste) than in any other cigarette at the price.

CONCERN WAS FOR MOTHER

Of Course Little Frank Was Not the Least Bit Afraid of the Darkness.

The family has moved from a gas-lighted house to one where there is electricity, and baby Frank, standing on tip toe, can just reach the two push buttons inside the rooms. They are a source of great amusement and he never fails to press them whenever he passes.

A few nights ago his mother came from the upper rooms and announced bedtime. Little Florence ran upstairs immediately. Frank, up to his usual tricks, pushed the button, and off went the light. The overwhelming darkness frightened the little fellow. After a minute he asked: "Mother, are you there?" "Yes, dear," said his amused mother. Another pause. "Mother, are you 'fraid?"

"No, dear, are you?"
"No, I ain't 'fraid, but you better put the light on. I'm 'fraid you will be 'fraid."

The life of a chorus girl can't be so very wearing, judging from the appearance.

Nearly all the money saved is saved for the purpose of spending it later on.

UNUSED TO EVENING DINNER

Grownup Recalls Embarrassing Incident Which Occurred in Her Childhood Days.

As a child in our family I was accustomed to having dinner at noon and a light supper in the evening, because there were several of us, and my mother considered it too harmful to have a heavy meal at night.

We had as a friend a woman who lived several blocks away. One day she called to me as I was returning from school and asked my two brothers and me to come to dinner the next day.

The following day the three of us went to her house at noon. She looked a little surprised as we came, but said nothing. After about a half an hour we wondered when we were to have dinner. She asked me why we were back from school so early that noon.

"We came to dinner," I said.

She smiled and said, "My dear, we have dinner this evening."

I called to my two brothers, and fled in embarrassment.—Exchange.

To win a race a Jockey doesn't put extra weight on the horse that helps him succeed

No man or woman who wants to succeed in the race of life can afford the handicap of headaches, insomnia, indigestion and debility. Nor can they afford to take anything that may keep up a continual irritation of the nervous system.

Yet this is what many people do who drink excessive amounts of tea or coffee. For tea and coffee contain caffeine, a substance that is sometimes very injurious. Many doctors say that caffeine raises the blood pressure, irritates the kidneys, and over-stimulates the entire nervous system. Also that it is especially bad for growing children, or for any one who has any tendency to nervousness or insomnia.

If you want to avoid a possible cause of headache, insomnia, or nervousness, it might be well to stop taking tea and coffee for awhile, and drink rich, satisfying Postum, instead.

Postum is a delicately-roasted, pure cereal beverage—delicious and wholesome.

Order Postum from your grocer today. Drink this fragrant, healthful beverage for awhile, and see if you will not feel brighter, more active, and more resistant to fatigue—as so many thousands of others have felt.

Postum comes in two forms: Instant Postum (in tins) made instantly in the cup by the addition of boiling water. Postum Cereal (in packages of larger bulk, for those who prefer to make the drink while the meal is being prepared) made by boiling for 20 minutes.

Pre-war service, for which Gettysburg business interests have been striving for several years, is to be re-established on the Gettysburg and Harrisburg railroad in very near future. There will be three trains a day each way, one being added each way in the middle of the day, and the evening train being moved two hours later than at present and arriving at Gettysburg at 9:20. The service given during and since the war has been very unsatisfactory, and the bus line established last fall has done a large business. Patronize "Item" advertisers.

The Season's Most Significant Style Event TRELAINE the Beautiful New Fabric Now Interprets Printz Designs

Trelaine is here. Trelaine, the new material, rich, soft and beautifully appealing, is enthusiastically approved by leading style authorities and fashion magazines.

And small wonder. For Trelaine presents a combination of qualities that only one fabric in a generation can embody. Its brushed wool surface fairly draws the hand to touch its softness. Its range of lovely colors, vivid or subdued, appeals to every taste.

Trelaine tailors irreproachably; half-knitted and half-woven, it cannot sag or ravel. The end of a journey shows a Trelaine garment no more mussed or wrinkled than the beginning.

We now have the distinction of offering the first presentation of Trelaine garments. Heretofore limited to a very few metropolitan shops, Trelaine now interprets exclusive Printz designs, today being shown in our garment section.

We count it a pleasure to show these beautiful new modes of Trelaine—a fabric surely destined for a permanent place in American dress. You will be delighted with their style, their quality and very moderate prices. This is your invitation to be one of the first to wear Trelaine.

The safe in the office of the Muntz-Dixon Company, machinists, East Hanover, was blown Monday night by burglars, who escaped with $26 in cash, a number of insurance policies and a sheaf of cancelled notes. The robbery was discovered next morning when members of the office force reported for work. The outer door of the safe was not locked. The inner doors, which were locked, were blown with nitro-glycerin, the burglar using the usual soap method. A sum of money and a mileage book in a drawer were not touched. Noise of the explosion was deadened when the outer door of the safe was closed. Entrance to the office was gained by use of a skeleton key. The burglar also entered the machine shop and procured a scraper, which he used in working on the safe. No one in the neighborhood heard the noise of the explosion. The blinds in the office had been drawn by the burglar while he was at work and were found pulled down to the window sills next morning.

BURGLAR STARTS FIRE

Burglars early Tuesday tried to rob the vault of the First National bank of Mt. Holly Springs, but obtained no money as far as is known. The bank, however, lost all its records for 16 years, including the current ledgers, through fire started by an acetylene torch. The banking room was badly damaged by fire and water, but the building was saved by firemen. Smoke issuing from the windows of the bank led Andrew Delp, of that place, a former resident of upper Adams county, to turn in an alarm for the fire department. Bank officials said this was the tenth time in five years attempts have been made to rob the bank. The last time was in October last year. Each time entrance was effected through the same window.

Mrs. D. Calvin Rudisill, Two Taverns, who was very ill, is much improved.

HOSPITAL DONOR DIES

He went along with Co. F, that was recruited at Gettysburg after the declaration of war. His position was that of sutler and he followed the army of the Union selling provisions to the troops for about a year when he was captured by the Confederates and imprisoned. He escaped a short time later and returned to Gettysburg. Following the war he was engaged in various mercantile enterprises in Gettysburg. He is survived by his wife, Annie M. Warner, in whose honor the hospital was named, and two brothers, Geo. Warner and Valentine Warner, both of Gettysburg.

WILL REDUCE COUNTY DEBT

The Sinking Fund Commission of Adams county held its annual organization meeting Tuesday, when officers were elected for the present year and plans for the decreasing of the bonded indebtedness of the county were made. The Sinking Fund Commission is composed of the three commissioners and their clerk, the county auditors, and the county treasurer, R. E. Zinn. R. H. Lupp was elected president, George W. Baker, secretary, and R. E. Zinn treasurer. Besides the election of officers, the Commission discussed plans for the redemption of county bonds upon maturity. In 1922, according to plans formulated Tuesday by the commission, there will be $5,000 appropriated to the sinking fund if the collection of bond taxes justifies that amount. The members of the commission were of the opinion that in all probability more than that amount will be added to the county sinking fund.

$130 COLLECTED IN 1919;

SHERIFF FAILED TO TURN OVER CASH TO COUNTY

Deputy Sheriff Howard J. Hartman has been indebted to the County Treasury for the costs in the case of Bessie Toddles for over two years. The costs in this case amounted to $130.35 and should have been paid to the county in November, 1919, by the Sheriff to whom the money was turned over by the woman, while still confined in the county jail. The County Commissioners have decided that since this money has been held so great a length of time by the Sheriff, the county should be reimbursed for its use and therefore to the bill of costs will be added interest at the rate of 6 per cent, dating from November, 1919, to the time of payment. At the meeting of the Auditors Thursday afternoon the former Sheriff admitted that he had received a check covering the amount of the fine ($1,000) and the costs and expressed surprise that he had not paid the costs at the time he paid the fine. He further said that he would look it up in his accounts and if he found no trace of the bill having been paid, he would make payment to the county immediately. No further word has been received in the matter. Interest for two years and four months on the money totals $13.24.

PRIEST WHO VISITED HERE RECENTLY ELOPED

Following the departure of Fr. Ebehart, 39, about the middle of February, on a 6-months' leave of absence from his pastorate of St. Joseph's Catholic church, Dallastown, and the disappearance of Miss Ida Noll, 22, member of his congregation, the mystery of the girl's disappearance was solved by a dispatch from New York, which told of their marriage on March 2nd by City Clerk Cruise. In the marriage license records, Ebehart declared he is a lecturer by occupation. He intends to return to Munich, Germany, shortly, where he will study economic and social conditions and lecture at a university. The elopement terminated a period of many months' friendship. The middle aged priest and the young girl were often seen together, but no one dreamed what was brewing.

COUPLE TIGHTENED UP

The Lancaster Express published the following account concerning a couple whose wedding created a stir in this place, one occurring last summer. A number of young men from hereabouts were involved, according to report.

Raymond H. Epley, Marietta, a violinist of ability, veteran of the World War and the possessor of a war decoration for bravery in action, and a son of Horace C. Epley, York, was arrested on Monday week by State Police. Epley is charged with having enticed 16-year-old Blanche Stotz from her home in Marietta last July. When taken into custody Epley told how he and the girl he loved had wandered to Florida, almost penniless, and then became stranded near York and walked to Marietta. Geo. Stotz, father of the pretty little runaway, didn't approve of the wanderings of his daughter with Epley, who is a married man and the father of two children, and when they appeared at his home at 4 o'clock in the morning he promptly summoned the State Police and brought charges against the musician. Epley loves Blanche Stotz and Blanche loves Epley. Both admitted this fact to the State Police and when the time came to part, tears were in the eyes of the little girl who had stuck by the man she loved when they were penniless, probably without food and no place to find shelter when night came.

By ROGER W. BABSON, American Statistician.

The truth is that the schools are not educating our children at all today. Our children, our boys, are really being educated by the newspapers, the movies and the billboards. Now I am not blaming the newspapers or the movie people or the billboards. They are tending to their business, while we fathers are asleep at the switch.

So we have got to educate our young men for business. Ninety-five per cent of the young men going out of the schools of Chicago go into industry or commerce, and yet 95 per cent of the instruction in the schools of Chicago is devoted to laying the foundation for the five per cent that go into professional and other lines of activity. Yes, this great clog in our distribution system, this condition in the world today which is ruining business men, which is putting farmers into bankruptcy, which is spreading havoc throughout our land, is due to the fact that our young people, our boys, especially, who are coming out of the school without the least idea of production, without the least idea of the fundamentals of production or distribution or the basis of business success.

What would you do about it, you ask. Well, I have four suggestions to make. The first suggestion is to put religion back into the schools. I tell you that this idea that we can get on by kicking down the ladder by which our fathers and grandfathers climbed up won't work forever. Our ancestors did not come over to America with the idea of turning religion out of industry and education; no, they came here for the sole purpose of putting religion in.

The fourth thing I should do in training our young men for industry would be to encourage the people of Chicago who are now engaged in part-time work. I would encourage the correspondence schools in Chicago. I would encourage the night schools of Chicago. I want to train young men while they are at work.

The Citizen Soldier and the Regular United States Army Officer

By W. E. LARNED, Major Ordnance Department, U. S. A.

It would be a matter of the keenest personal regret to those of us who are still in the service to feel that as West Pointers or non-West Pointers we represent an objectionable caste to the citizen soldiers of all ranks with whom we served during the trying days of the war and have reaped only their detestation. Many of us cherish feelings of the highest friendship, esteem, and appreciation of service for these men and had hoped that this feeling was mutual.

Congress has transformed the first military policy this country has ever had into law. This policy recognizes one army of the United States made up of component units, and the greatest of these is the organized reserve, composed of the citizen soldier. We in the service are bending every effort to obliterate the old vicious jealousies that existed between the regular army and its citizen companions and to strive to form one army, the army of the United States.

"Question Is Not Whether Gold Can Be Made From Base Metals, But—"

By WILLIAM A. BALLENTINE, Metallurgist.

There is nothing impossible in Thomas A. Edison's prediction that gold will yet be artificially made at a fraction of its present price. Gold has already been artificially made. Sir William Ramsay, a number of years ago, converted radium into gold. He made but a few grams of the yellow metal, but what he made was identical in every respect with gold as we know it in nature. But the gold that Sir William made cost about 20 times as much as the gold that comes from the ground.

The question before us is not whether gold can be made from base metals, but whether it can be made for less than the cost of the gold that comes out of the ground. I agree with Mr. Edison that the discovery might be made any day. I would add, however, that it may never be made.

Nothing, however, is more certain than that enormous discoveries in metallurgy are just ahead of us. The requirements of modern industrial life leave no doubt of this. Metallurgy has not kept pace with the development of other sciences because known forms of metals were sufficient for our needs. New forms of metals are now in demand, and in searching for them no one can tell what moment some one may stumble upon the way to make synthetic gold and make it cheaply.

Girls Should Not Marry Until After Five Years of Business Life

By PROF. R. L. POWERS, University of California.

The time has gone by when men choose the baby-doll type of woman with nothing to offer but a pretty face. Women with brains that are cultivated by business finesse and acumen are appreciated by most of the men.

Girls should not get married until they have had five years' experience in business life. A business adventure should be only a stepping stone to the altar. Marriage and home are the cardinal things in a woman's life. Business is secondary. They should retire from business at the time some worthy man comes along and asks them the all-important question. Women realize that their destiny is in the home, and a true woman is always ready to quit her office job for a life partnership that permits her to shine in her natural sphere.

Twenty-four years is the ideal age for a girl to marry. A girl should get a good business education, have five years of business life and then she is prepared to accept the responsibilities that come with wifehood.

THE BIRD QUARREL

LITTLE Jennie Wren was not afraid to speak her mind to anyone who happened to get in her way, and it happened one day that handsome Mr. Cardinal did this very thing.

He flew over from the top of a tall pine tree to the very tree near the stone wall by the road where Jennie lived, and began to sing while Mr. Wren was singing on a low limb of the tree.

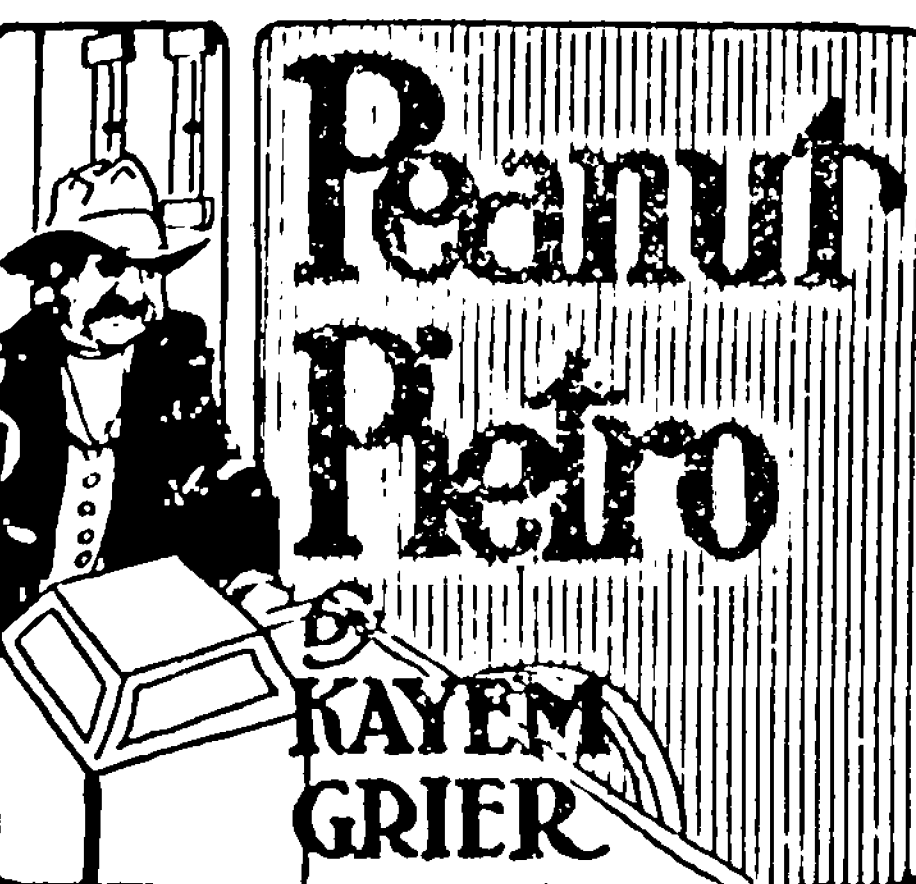

"Such impertinence," sputtered Jennie Wren, flying out of her home in the tree hole. He thinks just because he is so handsome he can do anything he likes. I will soon tell him, though.

Mr. Cardinal was so surprised that he stopped singing and listened, and when Jennie Wren stopped to breathe he said, calmly: "Have you heard my sweet-voiced wife sing? You may like to hear her song better than mine; I do."

Jennie was the surprised one this time, and she nearly lost her balance as she angrily hopped about and hobbled her tail, for she had expected Mr. Cardinal to quarrel with her.

"Huh!" replied Jennie, "your poor little wife; I should think you would say something in praise of her. The way you treat her is disgraceful. I know, and everybody must think so, too, that you are ashamed of her because she wears that brownish-gray dress all the time, while you go flying about all dressed up in fine clothes."

"For my part I admire her clothes much more than yours. She shows better taste dressing in such modest colors and, besides, if she did wear red, I guess the Cardinal family would soon come to an end, for she could be seen plainly enough by those who wish to harm birds and get their eggs."

While Jennie Wren was scolding and hopping about, a trim little bird flew to a twig near Mr. Cardinal, and when Jennie again stopped for breath Mrs. Cardinal—for it was she—said in a very sweet voice: "You are wrong, Mrs. Wren; my husband is not ashamed of me. He loves me very dearly and there is no bird that has a husband more devoted in his attentions than my handsome husband."

Again Jennie Wren was surprised, but she called back as she flew down to her home: "You poor thing; I suppose you do not dare say your soul is your own before your handsome husband; for my part I'd rather have one that is on an equal with me in appearance."

Mrs. Cardinal flew beside her husband and snuggled close. "Come back on the pine tree and I will sing to you," she said, "though I know well enough your own song is sweeter than mine."

"Not to my ears, my dear," answered Mr. Cardinal. "I think you have the sweetest voice in the world, but if you could not sing a note I should be thankful that you do not scold like Mrs. Wren."

"What's in a Name?"

Facts about your name: its history, meaning, whence it was derived, significance, your lucky day and lucky jewel

By MILDRED MARSHALL

ANGELICA

ANGELICA, a name of much more substance than the pallid Angela, is still one of the "angelic names" which feminine fancy delights to bestow on its girl children. It means, of course, "angelic" and seems difficult to reconcile with the behavior of some of the small daughters whom one finds bearing the name.

Angelos was a Greek word meaning "heavenly messenger," hence "angel." It first became a name in the Byzantine empire when it was bestowed as an epithet upon persons of surpassing beauty. It was applied most often as a masculine name and there was a Carmelite saint called Angelo, who established it as a baptismal name. In his honor, the feminine also became popular and Italian history records many instances of its use.

Angelica sprang to fame since it named the faithless lady of romance for whose sake Orlando lost his heart and his senses. Though she was the invention of Boiardo and Ariosto, the romantic flavor which the story gave her name brought Angelica to instant favor. England liked the name and adopted it. In France it became Angélique, and Italy produced the other forms of Angioletta and Anziletta, though Angelica continued the reigning favorite.

Angelica's talismanic gem is the pearl. It guards the purity and sweetness of her, brings her friends, and much charm. Sunday is her lucky day and 2 her lucky number. The wild rose is her flower.

THE ROMANCE OF WORDS

"CANDIDATE"

OWING to the ramifications of modern politics and the alterations in style of apparel, one would about as soon expect a "candidate" for a position to be entirely "candid" as they would expect him to make his appearance always dressed in white. But, according to the original meaning of the word, he should be the one and wear the other!

The Roman usage demanded that all who were openly seeking public office should be dressed in white and this, by degrees, led to their designation as candidates, or "wearers of white," derived from the verb candidare, to whiten. It is from the same stem that we obtain the word "candid," a word employed by some of the old English authors in its physical meaning of "white," but which has in ordinary everyday use been transferred to indicate a mental quality, a freedom from bias prejudice or deceit—all of which might be regarded as dark spots upon a character.

It is in its original sense of "white," however, rather than because of its connection with the modern meaning of the word candid, that we derive our word "candidate," and, to be strictly in accord with etymology and custom, no seeker after office should appear unless garbed in clothing of spotless dazzling white.

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

"I got so tired of hearing people say it, as they know it won't come to pass," said the floor.

"What are you talking of?" asked the door.

"Whenever people speak of having been embarrassed or having felt shy or having had something out of the ordinary happen they always say that they were so embarrassed that they almost went through the floor."

"I wish I could tell them once and for all time that they can't go through me because they are embarrassed or for any other reason."

"They think they can sink right down through me! Indeed! Well, I'd like to tell them they can't."

"I don't suppose you really need to do that," said the door, "for surely they understand."

"No one ever has gone through you because of embarrassment and surely they understand that. What they doubtless mean is that they felt so embarrassed that they almost did something quite impossible."

"It is only a very extreme way they have of speaking."

"I think they know," said the door. Now the floor was the floor of a bird shop and the floor was used to having many people pass over it, for so many people came in to shop.

"I should think," said the door, "that the birds would think it was strange, after they were taken home

by anyone who had bought them here, to see anyone sit down quietly.

"For how people do rush by this shop. They are always rushing and hurrying. They are always dashing some place or other, and they go by—oh, so many of them—and all of them hurrying."

"It is true that some of them do stop here and stand still for a few moments and look at the birds and the parakeet and the monkeys."

"But still, they do not seem to be quiet for very long. They always go rushing on again."

"I can't understand this rushing that creatures do," said the floor.

"Of course I can't understand it very well, either," said the door, "though I do enjoy going back and forth a bit myself."

"I don't," said the floor. "Once I'm in a certain spot I stay."

"I'm not discontented. I'm quite satisfied. I'm a floor and I like to stay still."

"I don't want to go to one place and then to another. I have no such desire at all."

"I see these people rushing and I feel them hurrying over me, and I say to myself:

"How thankful I am that I am a floor. I have no desire to hurry."

"To stay in one place suits me."

"Yes, door, there are some creatures who always want to be moving about. They go to one place and then to another. They aren't satisfied staying still and behaving quietly."

"But the floor is satisfied. Nor does the floor wish to see what is going on."

"The windows like to see what their neighbors are doing and who is walking down the street. But not the floor. The floor doesn't bother about anything else."

"And the floor doesn't mind if it is trampled upon. The floor is uncomplaining and sensible."

"My only complaint is that I don't like people to say that they almost went through me with embarrassment, because they couldn't do it, and they know it. It is ridiculous of them to say they almost did such a thing. They couldn't do it at all, at all."

"The chairs don't mind being set upon, but the floor is the best of all because it doesn't mind being trampled upon and it is always so contented to stay where it is put and not go rushing about wildly all the time."

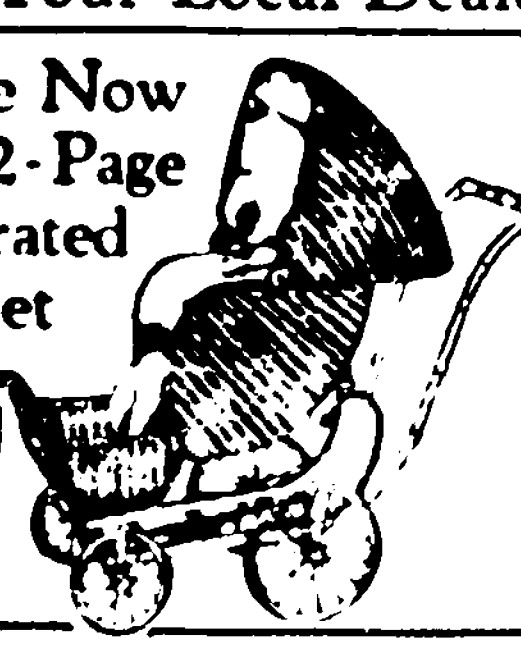

Had Experience.

The class was particularly alert that afternoon and Miss Scraggen beamed. But, as is often the case, when the teacher relaxed her iron rule the children began to get out of hand.

"Now, Willie," said Miss Scraggen, "if you had four pennies and Jamie had five, and you took his and put them to yours, what would that make?"

Willie glanced at Jamie, a big-boned, aggressive-chinned Scots lad, "Trouble!" he said, with conviction.

MARCUS MACKENZIE.

SYNOPSIS.—Occupying a dilapidated shack in the Silent City, a squatter settlement near Ithaca, New York, Polly Hopkins lives with her father, small Jerry, and an old woman, Granny Hope. On an adjacent farm, Oscar Bennett, prosperous farmer, is a neighbor. He is secretly married to Evelyn Robertson, supposedly wealthy girl of their neighborhood. Polly alone knows their secret. Oscar is a thoroughgoing villain. He is tired of his wife and has his eye on the pretty squatter girl, with her radiant eyes and her tumbling curls. And of course Polly would fight like a wildcat if Oscar so much as laid hands on her.

One day Polly had found her sick in bed, and, as she had led the forlorn billy goat home, so did she bring Granny Hope, never realizing that in the tottering old figure she was entertaining an angel unawares. All she knew was that Granny's toothless smile, her cheerful words of love and kindness, made the sun shine brighter and the meager food more filling.

During the winter, Mrs. Hope had encouraged the girl to read. At first that had been difficult, for the shanty contained nothing but the tattered Bible the old woman had brought with her. Over and over Polly had read the miseries of Job the patient, the long lamentations of Jeremiah, who always put her in mind of Daddy Hopkins; and she also knew by heart the story of the crucifixion of Jesus, who, so the Bible said, was the best man that had ever walked the globe.

So had those winter days of close companionship with the woman who had lived long and suffered much, and who now was almost ready to on to larger experiences, brought out in Polly Hopkins a greater capacity for loving. The squatters called her "Pollyop, the love-lass," and sometimes, "Polly of the sun." Granny Hope explained this by saying: "They all love you, Polly, an' it's out of your own heart they get the feelin' of joy when they see ye."

From behind the wood-box near where the goat stood, Pollyop took up an ax. Tenderly she bent and placed a kiss upon the goat's horny head. Then she touched Granny Hope.

The woman lifted her lids and smiled at the girl.

"What's the matter, love-lass?" she murmured.

Into the rain she went, her bare feet carrying her swiftly over the ragged rocks, her curls gathered under her chin like a warm glistening hood. When later she appeared in front of the shanty, her gingham skirt was filled with rusty pans and old pieces of tin. She placed them on the doorstep, and looking hesitatingly at the willow tree, went back into the house.

From a peg Polly took a pair of her father's trousers and clambered into them, tucking her skirts out of sight and rolling up the trouser legs, for Daddy Hopkins was much taller than his daughter. Into one of the big pockets Polly thrust a handful of nails. It was a grotesque looking girl who a few minutes later was flattening out the pans and the old bits of tin upon the stone.

When that was finished, she gathered them up and, ax in hand, climbed into the willow tree and onto the roof. Daddy Hopkins would be glad when he came home and found the shack dry and warm. Then she began her task of hammering the pieces of tin over the holes through which the water dripped. Once in a while she stopped working, and flat on her stomach, sought for smaller cracks.

Just as she had mended the last hole, she heard the sound of horses' hoofs and men's voices. With the fear of the persecuted, she crouched close to the roof, and like some frightened animal, crawled to the edge of it. Squatters did not speak like that, neither did they ride horseback. There in the lane, astride two magnificent animals, were two men. One she recognized instantly. Polly had every reason to know the tall man whose dark, handsome face had cast deep shadows over the Silent City. Marcus MacKenzie had been for years the Nemesis that hung over the Cayuga lake squatters. Even during his absence on war work abroad, his long arm had often reached back to the Silent City to pick away some husband and close the prison gates behind him.

Pollyop had a passionate desire to throw the ax at him. She knew there was not a heart in all the Silent City that did not beat with dread at the very mention of his name.

Then she caught a glimpse of the other man's face and forgot her terror of Marcus MacKenzie. In Ithaca and about it she had seen many soldiers but never anyone like MacKenzie's companion. He was dressed in an officer's uniform, and, as his horse whirled him into better view, the frown faded from Pollyop's brow as she gazed wonderingly upon him. She marked his flashing glances that swept the Silent City. She noted with a strange little thrill the beauty of the clearest features, the full, kindly mouth and the smooth, tanned skin.

Marcus MacKenzie was speaking rapidly, and though Polly could not hear what he said, she knew he was talking of the squatters. Then words that made her tingle with joy came distinctly to her ears.

"But you can't turn a lot of folks out of their homes, Marc," rang forth a deep, rich voice. "Where under the heaven would they go if you did?"

"Anywhere they d—n please," snarled MacKenzie contemptuously. "If they were all dead, they'd be better off, and Ithaca too."

Polly's hand tightened on the ax-handle. To let it fly straight into the face of the haughty Ithacan would have been satisfaction indeed!

"Have you tried to buy them out?" asked the other.

"No, and I don't intend to," was the sharp retort. "They'll go because I'll make them go, that's all. I've been too busy for the last two years to make much of a dent among them, but now I'm home for good, I mean to clear them off." An outward gesture of the officer's hand told Polly he was not in sympathy with MacKenzie's threat. "You can't judge of the situation, Bob," Marcus went on, "because you've been gone for years. Evelyn can tell you what they are, though."

The speaker wheeled his horse and pointed his riding whip straight at the Hopkins' shanty; and Polly's curly head drew quickly back.

"One of the worst of them lives there!" she heard plainly. "He's sort of a mayor of the settlement. Jeremiah Hopkins! And such a tribe as that but holds can't be found anywhere else in this county. A worthless, tangle-haired girl and a boy half in the grave, and I heard only this morning they're harboring a lag by the name of Hope. They live like pigs, too."

"The poor things haven't much of a chance to live otherwise, have they, Marc?" The question evidently required no answer. "Well, what do you think of that?" he went on. Then he read aloud: "If your heart is loving and kind, come right in. If it ain't, scoot off! Why, that's beautiful!"

The warm, velvety brown the rich man's threats had made a hard glare was brought back to Polly's eyes by these words. She could have hugged the speaker as hard as she sometimes did Daddy Hopkins!

"Rubbish!" sneered MacKenzie. "Perfect rot! Your aunt was saying this morning that the Hopkins girl is as odd as she is filthy. The very idea of having a thing like that hung up!"

Polly saw the younger man reach out and touch the speaker with a gloved hand.

"Love isn't rubbish, wherever you find it, old chap!" he exclaimed. "It gives even a squatter shack a glimpse of heaven. You ought to help these people, Marc. Give them a chance; make something of them, and they won't bother you."

Burning tears filled Polly's eyes. To hear him speak in sympathy with her fishermen friends touched her deeply. And he had spoken of love in the same way Granny Hope did, too. Pollyop had never laughed Old Marc's kind ever thought of the meek—the lowly—and the hungry. Far above the world, up in the skies beyond the clouds where the blue was, right alongside the crucified Savior, Polly Hopkins placed this new friend of the Silent City. Her thoughts were interrupted by MacKenzie speaking.

Polly lost the rest of his sentence. Back and yet farther back she slipped over the roof. She had never heard anything so dreadful as this. In fact, she had always quite liked pigs, but she had never thought of comparing the shanty or Granny Hope and Daddy Hopkins to a barnyard and its occupants.

She heard the men ride away; and once more she sat up. By raising her body a little, she could see them walking their horses along the road that led its crooked way through the settlement.

MacKenzie's straight, thick-set figure made her shudder, but the slim, boyish one beside him brought a queer little thrill to her heart.

"He's a beautiful angel himself," she murmured, and taking up the ax, she slipped down the tree and dropped to the wet ground. Granny Hope straightened up as Polly entered the kitchen. Swiftly the girl crawled out of her father's trousers and tossed back her curls.

"What's the matter, pretty brat?" queried the woman drowsily.

"I got to find Daddy," replied Polly, her voice shaking. "Old Marc's back an' he's after us squatters a-lyin' an', Granny—"

"Yep, honey?" prompted Mrs. Hope.

"Old Marc had a beautiful angel with him," went on the girl, "an' he likes us squatters. He stood right up to that rotten MacKenzie. I heard him, I did."

"Love's able to send a angel slapping down to this old earth to help us, huh, Granny Hope?"

"Yep, sure—sure, honey-girl," murmured Granny, and once more her head bobbed forward, and she slept.

CHAPTER II.

About the time Polly Hopkins began to repair the shack roof, Evelyn Robertson came into the room where her mother sat reading. The girl was dressed to go out and was drawing a pair of gloves over her ringed fingers.

"Where are you going, Eve?" inquired the lady. "It seems to me that you're running out altogether too much. There's your piano! You haven't practiced in months. Now don't blame me, Eve, if, when Marcus asks you to play, you fall flat."

A dull red ran into the girl's cheeks, but she made no reply as she smoothed the wrinkles from her gloves.

"The good Lord knows," continued the mother irritably, "that I've kept at you enough. Now Marc and Robert are home, how are you going to entertain them? Men demand so much."

The experiences of the past two years had taught Evelyn that lesson. It had been demand, demand and more demanding ever since, on girlish impulse, she had secretly married Oscar Bennett.

"And you heard what Marcus said last night about the Silent City folks," went on Mrs. Robertson. "What you want of that Hopkins girl I don't understand. Marcus says her father is the most dangerous man among the lot of them, and the girl herself is queer."

"Oh, don't talk about the squatters all the time," cried Evelyn. "I hate the very sound of the word. What's Polly Hopkins, anyway? . . . Now Marcus is home—"

"Darling," the mother interrupted eagerly, "it has always been my hope that you and Marc would grow to care for each other. He is so rich and so handsome! Now, isn't he?"

A groan almost leapt from Evelyn's lips. What a fool she had been! Here she was married to a man she loathed, a man she was ashamed of! The realization that another man, rich, good-looking and in every way desirable, had turned his serious eyes upon her, almost made her blurt out the whole story to her mother; but having kept silent so long, she dared not speak now. All through the night she had tossed and turned, hunting some way to get Oscar Bennett out of her life without Marcus MacKenzie knowing anything about it. She dared not go to Oscar himself; Polly Hopkins was the only hope she had. All Bennett cared for was money. He was as tired of her as she was of him. Perhaps he would go away quietly and set her free if she gave him money enough. Would her mother give it to her?

"Mother, do you honestly want me to marry Marc?" she asked, trembling. Mrs. Robertson caught at the outlying hand.

"I do, I do indeed, darling," she answered. "And he'll ask you too, I'm sure. Perhaps not today or tomorrow, for he's just renewing his acquaintance with you. By the way he looked last night I could tell he was considering it."

A handkerchief dropped from Evelyn's fingers, and she stooped to pick it up.

"If I lead Marcus on," she suggested, rising, "and—get him to ask me to marry him, will you give me any sum of money I want?"

Her voice shook with emotion, and her young face seemed suddenly old and haggard. Mrs. Robertson had never seen her daughter in such a state.

"Sit down a minute, Evelyn," she commanded. "Now tell me what you want money for. I know very well that you haven't spent what I've allowed you upon yourself. That's why I've refused you so much lately. No more secrets or mystery! I want the facts. Now tell me this minute."

The girl dropped into a chair and buried her face in her hands.

"I can't," she whispered.

For some time she remained in the same attitude, while her mother studied her silently. At length the girl lifted herself erect.

"I can't explain," she broke out, "and I suppose you're thinking all kinds of things. I can't help it if you do. You'll have to give me the money I need, if you want me to marry Marc. There's no 'ifs' and 'ands' about that. If you'll give me the money," she faltered, wiped her lips and concluded slowly, "I'll marry Marcus MacKenzie."

"You must be crazy, Eve," Mrs. Robertson said in a cold voice, "to talk to me like that. If you have any secrets from me, it's time you told them."

"Well?" shot from Evelyn sharply. "Suppose I have? It's my secret, isn't it? Are you going to help me or not, that's the question."

It was evident to Mrs. Robertson that the situation was not to be trifled with. In a twinkling her daughter had changed from a meek and timid girl to an aggressive woman. To try to bully her any more would be a mere waste of effort.

"Heavens," she began, "this is a pretty how to do, I must say. I can't imagine why you should want money. It doesn't make much difference, anyway. There are more reasons than one why you can't get it from me."

"What are they?" fell from the girl's lips.

"The first is," returned the mother, tartly, "I don't like being held up in this high-handed manner by my own daughter."

She paused; and Evelyn caught her breath. If that were all, she would row and rage until she got what she wanted.

Mother and daughter were staring at one another, each demanding an explanation. Evelyn did not intend to make any! Mrs. Robertson weakened before the steely-blue in the girl's eyes.

Evelyn sprang to her feet and confronted her mother. Her face was drawn into cruel lines, and her hands were gripped spasmodically.

"You lie," she burst forth. "You've always lied to me about money."

A bitter smile drew down the corners of the older woman's mouth. She knew how true the accusation was.

"Well, this time," she answered, "I'm telling you the simple truth. I not only do not own this house, but—"

"Then who does own it?" interjected the girl.

"Your cousin, Robert Percival," was the quick response; "and he's supplied all the money we have used. Now perhaps you won't try to get something out of me I haven't got."

"Mother!" cried the girl, in agony. "I told you, Eve, that you should know the truth," Mrs. Robertson continued. "You've asked for it, and here it is. When Robert's father and mother died, I came here to take care of him. I had nothing then and have nothing now. You were only a baby, and I've always kept the facts from you. When Robert went to war, he arranged that if he didn't come back, I should have the home and enough money to keep us."

Evelyn's eyes widened. Of a surety this was the truth.

"Then we aren't rich?" she demanded huskily.

"Oh, you needn't be so theatrical, my dear," said the woman. "Robert's never given me the slightest reason to feel he thought us a burden. I'm quite like his mother, as I should be. The only thing necessary is that you should feather your own nest before Bob makes up his mind to get married. I know very well you've turned down many a young man in Ithaca. Now your chance has come. Marc MacKenzie's rich. He loves you—"

Without waiting to hear anything more, Evelyn ran out of the room. Mrs. Robertson sank back with a sigh, partly of relief that at last Evelyn knew just the situation they were in, partly of anxiety as to her daughter's secret.

The new Spring
Are Here!

First arrivals always heighten curiosity--indeed these new Spring Costumes do, each one a triumph, so fresh and new in silhouette, in fabric and in garniture. It would be nice to introduce them one by one, much as important guests at famous functions are, for each by its own attractiveness is worthy. But just to tell that the most distinguished of Spring Fashions are here, revealing lines that may be traced to Moyen and Victorian times, trimming notions from the Far East, China, and from the Near East, Russia, fabrics into whose woof and warp is woven the skill of such men as Rodier and Poiret, is now our purpose and to invite you to this exposition of styles beautiful, styles authentic, for Spring of 1922.

NEW SUITS

This and That About Them

It's a story in three parts that the most swagger Tailors tell, a jacket, a skirt and a blouse, though some jackets turn out to be capes and some skirts and blouses join fashion forces and appear as one piece frocks. That's the situation in a nut shell, but you are eager for the smart and telling details. You want to know that soft Kashas and colorful tweeds are favored, that boxed jackets are jauntiest, that stand up collars are perky, that bright colors are frequently introduced and so on and so on--well, come and see them, Suits almost without end.

When fashion prescribes Suits of sports fabrics with boxed jackets the young Miss longs to take possession. And when she does she will find our displays ready for her.

COATS--CAPES

Reveal Sport Tendencies

The Cape's the thing, it's seen on every hand where fashionably costumed women gather, but not just "any" Cape will do. Certain things stand out among the elect of style. Fabrics, just the softest most serviceable sort, the sports materials tweeds and homespun. The lines are after comfort's pattern, gathered at the shoulder or circularly cut. And such features as stand up collars, scarf throws, fringed finishes, place Capes on heights of style distinction. Coats of soft woolsens take to mannish lines and the enjoyment of possessing such a Coat should hasten you on to your selection.

FROCKS

In Many Guises--All Smart

Varying as to details but with a single thought--to fashion Frocks distinctively smart has been the creed of designers for Spring. A bouffant taffeta in quaint basque style, a crisply cut street Frock of Crepe Knit whose upper half is made of Canton Crepe. How different each is from the other, yet how individually good looking, portraying the brilliant fashion ideas of great designers and promising the well-dressed woman a distinctiveness that less exclusive styles could never give.

Sweet sixteen and looking even more winsome will be easy in these quaintly bouffant taffetas, and for every day are Jerseys in Billie style.

Let Spring Into Your Home

Next to new togs for yourself, choosing new things to brighten up your home promises the most pleasant shopping hours. A gay chintz covered pillow for the comfy chair; new curtains in new Spring patterns, cretonnes, swisses, scrims that beckon to Spring breezes; a Japanese print breakfast cloth to make breakfast tastier; a bowl of growing bulbs. You who take such pride in the attractiveness of your home know how effective these little things can be and we know that the Home Furnishing Sections are very completely represented in this Spring Exposition.

Spring Spun Into Fabrics

It is a marvelous art the modern weavers practice, from those exquisite lengths that hail from Rodier's studios to the also fascinating Fabrics from our own New England mills. The Woolens, rich and soft, the tweeds and twills; the Crepes more crinkly than ever and just as fashionable, the Taffetas, faille-like in texture, the Sports Silks pursuing novelty and color with abandon. One wonders when before there have been quite so many, so brim full of costume inspiration for the clever woman who designs her own.

Children's and Infants' Display

Not by any means the least attractive of the Spring displays are those for Children and the Infant folk. Everything to outfit from tip to toe is here in assortments that are complete. And never have you seen more interesting styles.

LINGERIE

Though nothing could be finer or more delicate than fine Lingerie one always feels as though they stand on terra firma when broaching this subject to women--they all love pretty underthings so. One feels surer than ever of their ground this Spring in view of displays as large and lovely as these.

NECKWEAR

Neckwear from perky pique sets to lacy vestees of filet and Irish composes one of the Store's most bewitching displays, a place you surely must visit as soon as you know the necklines of your new frocks.

GLOVES

Gloves aren't the biggest item in a complete costume repertoire, but for Spring they show such novelty that one may say. "Having been faithful in little things the important role of giving accent to ones whole appearance may be left to them."

VEILS

It's an ill wind that blows nobody any good and the ones who will profit by this Spring's breezes are the clever women who seize the opportunities they offer to wear crisp Veils from this assortment.

Blouses and Skirts

Make such charming Spring debuts that they will be unconditionally admitted to the wardrobes, even drawing rooms, of smartly dressed women. First the Blouses; they have called a wealth of Old World artistry their own, especially the ones of white Crepe de Chine so quaintly embroidered in bright colors after Bulgarian peasant motifs.

Skirts deserted pleats when their designers first set eyes on something different, something newer--Skirts that fit the hips snugly and drape gracefully toward one side whether fashioned of silk or the rich woolens.

Garments Individually Suited

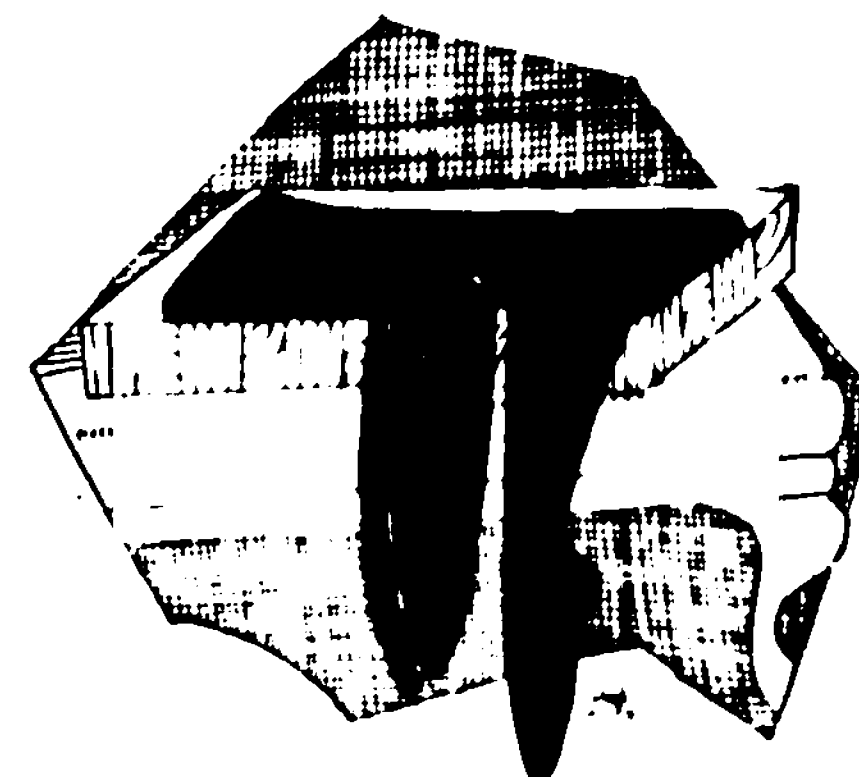

During their trips to the great fashion centers to select the costumes that make up this Spring Exposition, our buyers, kept prominently in mind the varying preferences and requirements of our patrons. This means you will find garments here chosen as individually suited to you as though exclusively created for you by leading designers.

Stout Apparel

Has been made a feature of the Spring Exposition because its designers have created costumes exactly as attractive and becoming as in the smaller sizes.

Loose panels and beading make Frocks decidedly good looking, and sports lines so fashionable for Spring make the new Coats and Suits becoming to larger women.

HOSIERY

Limited to space as Hosiery is because of longer skirts, many things would just have made the best of circumstances. Hosiery has made the most of them, revealing smart new shades in sheer weaves and exceedingly swagger wool sports models.

Tentative plans for the construction of an 8-story modern hotel in Gettysburg were presented Saturday
afternoon at a luncheon in the Hotel Gettysburg. It was estimated the structure would cost approximately $1,000,000. Twenty-five business men
of that town heard the proposition
explained by Wm. Grenoble, formerly of Gettysburg, now resident manager
of the William Penn Hotel in Pittsburg, and S. L. Waller, architect and construction engineer, of New York.
Mr. Grenoble and Mr. Waller represent Pittsburgh Hotel men, who, it is said, are able to finance the proposition to a large extent and are desirous of placing a hotel in Gettysburg.
Tentative plans call for a structure
in which would be located 200 rooms
with baths, a convention hall with a seating capacity of 1,500 and a number of store rooms on the ground floor. It is pointed out that such a hotel would not only attract tourists,
but would make Gettysburg a resort
town as well as a mecca for sight-
seers. From the interest shown by the men present there is little doubt that the proposition will be considered further.

To determine public sentiment on the proposition of erecting a new hotel in Gettysburg, a town meeting will be held in the near future.
On Friday evening, March 17, in the
P. O. S. of A. theatre, East Berlin, a pageant, "The Striking of America's Hour", will be given by a cast of 50
people under the auspices of the Women's Missionary Society of Trinity Lutheran church, East Berlin. This pageant has been given at some of the summer conferences and is worth going to see. They will also be assisted by Mrs. Estie Garrett, reader.
A large plot of land immediately
east of Gettysburg on the Hanover
road is being divided into building
lots and will shortly be offered for sale.

The Salant & Salant cutting factory received two carloads of goods at
the East Berlin factory last week.
Lloyd Phillips moved from Franklin-
town to East Berlin last week.

Any breaking out of the skin, even
fiery, itching eczema, can be quickly
overcome by applying a little Men-tho-Sulphur, says a noted skin specialist. Because of its germ destroying properties, this sulphur preparation instantly brings ease from skin
irritation, soothes and heals the eczema right up and leaves the skin clear and
smooth.
It seldom fails to relieve the torment
and disfigurement. Sufferers from skin trouble should get a little jar
of Men-tho-Sulphur from any good

Unanimous agreement on a compromise soldiers bonus bill was reached Friday by House Ways and Means committee Republicans. The revised measure, however, still has a long road to travel before it reaches the statute books. As now drawn the bill provides for cash payments only to those men whose adjusted service pay would not exceed $50 and these four optional features: Adjusted service certificates with an added loan provision which would enable the men to obtain immediately from bank a sum equal to 50 per cent. of the adjusted service pay; vocational training, home and farm aid and land settlement. The face value of the certificate would be the amount of the adjusted service pay plus 25 per cent. plus interest at 4 per cent. compounded annually. The adjusted service pay would be on the basis of $1 a day for domestic service and $1.25 a day for overseas service.

The Pneumonia Month. March is a ter, the system loses much of its rectly pneumonia month and usually gives a high rate of mortality for the disease. After a long and hard yistance and people grow careless. When every cold no matter how slight, is given prompt and intelligent attention, there is much less danger of pneumonia. It should be born in mind that pneumonia is a germ disease and breeds in the throat. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is an expectorant and cleans out the germ laden mucus and not only cures a cold but prevents its resulting in pneumonia. It is pleasant to take. Children take it willingly.

After being unaccounted for since the middle of last month, John S. Byrne, secretary of the Carlisle Y. M. C. A., who was thought to have been a victim of foul play, telegraphed his wife that he had suffered a loss of memory while visiting in New York and found himself in Los Angeles. Although the association directors found no shortage in his account, they declared his office vacant. Byrne will return, his wife stated.

An epidemic of pink eye has developed in St. Mary's parochial school, McSherrystown. A number of pupils were sent home so as to prevent the disease from spreading. As high as ten pupils out of one room have been afflicted with the inflammation which is contagious but not dangerous.

Edward Overbaugh, who has conducted a barber shop in a portion of the Pfaltzgraff hotel, McSherrystown, moved his equipment to the one side of the recently remodeled Rudisill property, formerly the Riley grocery. H. K. Pfaltzgraff will convert the room vacated by Overbaugh into a lobby.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving remembrance of George S. Wildasin, who died March 8, 1917. Five years have gone, dear father, And we miss you more and more; But some day perhaps we'll meet you, On that bright and happy shore. You are not forgotten, father dear, Nor will you ever be;

As long as life and memory lasts, I will remember thee.

One by one the Lord will call us, As our labor here is done; And when we cross the river, We may meet them one by one, Gone but not forgotten.

—By his daughter,
Mrs. Marvin Haverstock.

Adams county, for the first time in a quarter of a century, completed a year with a balance on hand and no floating indebtedness. This statement is made by the auditors, who are now completing their work. The balance on hand amounted to $29,066.53. In addition to heavy expense met during the year, $53,000 in outstanding loans was paid. The expenses included $70,667 for new bridges and $3,087 for repairs to old ones, while over $32,000 additional was required for redeeming bonds and paying state tax on outstanding issues.

The county commissioners have issued a letter to all tax collectors in the county requesting early action on taxes due and stating that a wrong impression has been existing among some people concerning the liability of women for the payment of taxes, and in which it is pointed out that there is no difference in the obligation. However, the tax collectors are told that no levying shall be made on personal property in the case of women who are too poor to pay, and it is further said that no imprisonment for taxes would be made in the case of women, even if that were possible under the law.

An appropriation for $7,500 was made to the sinking fund for the redemption of bonds during the year and in addition to this $10,000 in bonds of the 1906 issue were redeemed. The interest and state tax on existing bonds amounting to $15,167.50 was met and paid during the year and the commissioners have a balance in the sinking fund of $11,181.25 for the redemption of bonds which come to maturity in the near future.

Gettysburg Fire Company recommended the name of Walter Sterner as Fire Marshall for the coming year and he was unanimously elected by Council.

GLASS OF SALTS IF YOUR KIDNEYS HURT

Eat less meat if you feel Backache or have Bladder trouble—Salts
fine for Kidneys.

Meat forms uric acid which excites
and overworks the kidneys in their efforts
to filter it from the system. Regular eaters of meat must flush the kidneys occasionally. You must relieve them like you relieve your bowels; removing all the acids, waste and poison, else you feel a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp
pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach aches, tongue is
have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment; the channels
often get irritated, obliging you to get up two or three times during the night.
To neutralize these irritating acids
and flush out the body's urinous waste get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will not get fine and bladder disorders disappear. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithium, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys and stop bladder irritation.
Jad Salts is inexpensive; harmless and
makes a delightful effervescent lithia-
water drink which millions of men and women use now and then, thus avoiding serious kidney and bladder diseases.

LADIES! LOOK YOUNG, DARKEN GRAY HAIR
Use the Old-time Sage Tea and Sulphur and Nobody
Will know.

Gray hair, however handsome, denoted advancing age. We all know
the advantages of a youthful appearance. Your hair is your charm. It makes, or mars the face. When it turns, turns gray and looks streaked,
it is a few applications of Sage Tea
and Sulphur enhances its appearance hundred-fold.
Don't stay gray! Look young!
Either prepare the recipe at home or get from any drug store a bottle of
"Weyth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," which is merely the old-time
recipe improved by the addition of certain ingredients. Thousands of folks recommend this ready-to-use preparation, because it darkens the hair beautifully, besides, no one can possibly
evenly. You moisten a sponge or soft brush with it, drawing this through
the hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair
disappears; after another application
or two, its natural color is restored
and it becomes thick, glossy and lustrous, and you appear years younger.
Weyth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite
it is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

OLD-TIME COLD CURE—DRINK HOT TEA!

Get a small package of Hamburg
Breast Tea at any pharmacy. Take a tablespoonful of the tea, put a cup of boiling water upon it, pour through a sieve and drink a teacup full at any time during the day or before retiring.
It is the most effective way to break
a cold and cure grip, as it opens the pores of the skin, relieving congestion.
Also loosens the bowels, thus breaking
up a cold.
Try it the next time you suffer from
a cold or the grip. It is inexpensive
and entirely vegetable, therefore safe
and harmless.

RUB RHEUMATISM FROM STIFF ACHING JOINTS

Rub Soreness from joints and muscles
with a small trial bottle of old
St. Jacobs Oil

Stop "dosing" Rheumatism.
It's pain only; not one case in fifty
requires internal treatment. Rub soothing, penetrating "St. Jacobs Oil" right
on the "tender spot," and by the time
you say Jack Robinson—out comes the rheumatic pain. "St. Jacobs Oil" is a harmless rheumatism cure which never disappoints and doesn't burn the skin. It takes pain, soreness and stiffness from aching joints, muscles and bones; stops sciatica, lumbago, backache, neuritis.
Limber up! Get a 35 cent bottle of old-time, honest "St. Jacobs Oil" from any drug store, and in a moment you'll
be free from pains, aches and stiffness. Don't suffer! Rub rheumatism
away.

Don't borrow your neighbor's paper
when you can have it sent to you for a little less than 2 cents a week.

HEALING CREAM
QUICKEST RELIEF FOR HEAD COLDS

Colds and catarrh yield like magic to soothing, healing, antiseptic cream that penetrates through every air passage
and relieves swollen, inflamed membranes of nose and throat. Your clogged nostrils open right up and you can breathe freely. Hawking and snuffling
stop. Don't stay stuffed up and miserable.
Get a small bottle of Ely's Cream
Balm from your druggist. Apply a little in the nostrils and get instant relief. Millions endorse this remedy
known for more than fifty years.

The mid-winter meetings of the
Poultry program adopted by the Farm
Bureau will be conducted by P. L.
Sanford, of State College. The principle subject to be discussed at this time will be the hatching and rearing
of chicks. Nearby meetings will take place at the time and place as follows:

fice, 1:30 p. m., Boyer's Store, York
Springs; 7:30 p. m., Locust Grove
Schoolhouse, Aspers; Wednesday—10

1:30 p. m., Abbottstown Hotel, Ab-
bottstown; Thursday—10 a. m., Hotel

m., Barlow Community Meeting.

The black sucker, a fish well worth
the catching and the eating in early spring time, and against which there
are no laws as to either limit or size,
is to be raised on a large scale by the Pennsylvania Department of Fisheries. Commissioner N. R. Butler now has men out taking the adult fish from which the first large lot will be hatch-
ed. Sucker fishing is becoming popular in the state with those who like
to get their lines in the water in the spring before the laws allow the taking of game fish.

Found a Cure for Indigestion—
"I use Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets for indigestion and find they suit my case better than any dyspepsia remedy I have ever tried and I
have used many different medicines.
I am nearly fifty years of age and have suffered a great deal from indigestion. I can eat almost anything
I want to now," writes George W.
Emory, Rock Mills, Ala. These tablets contain no poison but strengthen
the stomach and enable it to digest
the food naturally.

Transportation of liquor in Penn-

the bootlegging trade."

HOW WIDE ARE WE?

Every woman, and man too, has
wondered at least once in life who it
is that prescribes the width of chairs
at the theatres and on the cars and
it was who set the standard at
just so many inches.

There is real reason for this won-
der. All men and women may be created equal—but they certainly vary
in certain proportions as they grow
older. Particularly do they grow different in the physical machinery used
in the necessary operation of sitting down. Despite this fact, whoever it is that decides the width of seats goes
right on doing it as though every man
and woman was turned out by one pattern.

This long grievance of a long suffering public blazed up recently at the wedding of Princess Marv of England to the Viscount Lascelles. And in this case it was not folk who had long
suffered the restraints of standardized seats, but scores of the nobles
and peeresses of England who all
their lives had never been forced to sit in narrower places than their
width demanded for comfort. Wide
and comfortable chairs these ladies had at their castles. Immoderate of breadth and so on. Their wealth had made it possible for them never, in a way of speaking, to feel the pinch
that lesser people did.

Then the Duke of Atholl was picked out to make the arrangements for seating them at Westminster Abbey
to see the wedding ceremony. The Duke looked over the ground, also the lists of the peeresses invited. By a simple mathematical calculation he divided one by the other. The result was a sixteen-inch wide chair for each peeress to sit on.

But—Ah, there was one. What happened when those noble ladies learned they were supposed to sit
side by side like sardines each on a sixteen-inch chair, makes perhaps the most amusing and interesting incident of the whole royal wedding.
Any one who has ever felt like lynching the genius who prescribed
the width of public chairs for us will
miss a real treat if they do not look at the pictures and read the story of the Duke of Atholl's tragic error and
what happened after it in the New York Sunday American next Sunday.

Beautiful Spring Suits and Frocks that Will Appeal to Woman's Fancy

in Women's Suits, Frocks and Wraps.

Exquisite and Charming are two adjectives that ably express the feeling that women possess for the New Spring Styles.

discrimination in their wearing apparel.

In blend, in coloring and tasteful styling we do not believe we have ever shown such an inspiring selection. The utmost in artistic fashionable is combined with reasonable and sensible expenditure.

WAISTS The new Spring Shirt Waists are also very beautiful this season while the prices
are very reasonable.

MIDDIES Jack-Tar-Tod Middies are more popular than ever before. Both attractive and serviceable.

LITTLESTOWN-GETTYSBURG
ROAD ALONE TO BE BUILT

A stretch of 5 miles will be resurfaced on the Gettysburg-Littlestown road during the coming summer. Plans are now completed to begin the work about April 1 and according to district engineer Frame, 7 months will be needed to finish rebuilding this stretch. This will necessitate some detouring on this road during the summer months but when finished it will be the equal of any concrete road in the county, it is said. The same process of construction will be adopted as used on the Lincoln Highway between Abbottstown and York. The present surface of the road and part of the roadbed is plowed up and new bottom substituted. Part of this road for a few miles outside of Littlestown has already been reconstructed. When Mr. Frame announced the construction of this road, he also stated that it would be the only work done in this county during the summer except the regular maintenance work of the department.

George Kinter, of Latimore township, will soon believe that he bears a charmed life. Some years ago he was dragged around a field by a runaway mule when his foot caught in the harness as he was dismounting and escaped with minor injuries. One day recently he again escaped death by a close margin when a large log, which he was attempting to load on a wagon by the aid of horses, rolled backward when the chain tore. Mr. Kinter was in the path of the log which rolled over him striking his shoulder and dislocating some of the ligaments. Fortunately he was thrown under the skids as the log struck him and his head was thus saved from being crushed.

The estate of Lewis Saddler, late state highway commissioner, is reported to amount to about three million dollars. His father, the late Judge Saddler, was a native of near York Springs.

THAT MORNING LAMENESS

If you are lame every morning, and suffer urinary ills, there must be a cause. Often it's weak kidneys. To strengthen the weakened kidneys and avert more serious troubles, use Doan's Kidney Pills. You can rely on this man's testimony.

John J. Tawney, 234 Baltimore St., Gettysburg, Pa., says: "I suffered often and on with rheumatic pains and kidney ailments. My back ached constantly and often in the morning I was lame and so stiff I could hardly get out of bed. My kidneys acted irregularly, too. Someone advised me to try Doan's Kidney Pills and I got some. I was surprised at the quick relief I received. I am not bothered by rheumatic pains now and I am much better all around."

FOX HOUND GOES ON BRANDY SPREE

Sneaks Out to Secret Cache and Comes Home With Beautiful Jag.

Charlottesville, Va.—J. A. Dunn, a well-known farmer and fox hunter of this section, was out on a chase Saturday. The next day one of his valued hounds left home of its own accord, returning late in the evening.

Mr. Dunn observed that the dog was acting peculiarly. He thought the animal had been poisoned and examined its eyes for symptoms. About this time he got a whiff of the dog's breath and detected a strong odor of apple brandy on it. Mr. Dunn took the animal mal in the house and gave it some milk to drink. Then it stretched out by the stove. It did not remain there long before it began to show signs of a jag, which would have been the delight of an old toper. The hound the next day acted as though it had a very bad headache.

Mr. Dunn thinks the dog located the booze the day of the fox chase and kept it to himself, slipping back the next day. He is watching him closely. In the hope that he will lead him to the cache.

GIRL'S NERVE STOPS THEFT

Bookkeeper Grapples With Thief and Holds on Until Foreman Comes to Assistance.

Attleboro, Mass.—Thanks to the courage and determination of Mrs. Amelia Mitchell, a bookkeeper, a series of petty breaks is at an end and Joseph Morgner, nineteen years old, is back in Concord reformatory, serving time for larceny.

Mrs. Mitchell is employed by the R. M. McDonald company, manufacturing jewelers.

Young Morgner entered the office and made respectful application for a job. Mrs. Mitchell went to call a foreman. Returning sooner than she was expected, she surprised the visitor taking possession of $200 in an unlocked safe.

She immediately grappled with the thief, a young man much larger than herself. Despite his desperate attempts to shake her off she clung to him until Irving Hodges, a foreman, came to her aid and subdued young Morgner.

According to the police the boy has admitted stealing money from the waiting room of the Rhode Island hospital in Providence and to entering or attempting to enter three office buildings here.

One of the officers was that of Judge Ralph E. Estes, who tried him and sent him to the reformatory.

Five Bullets, This Old Actor's Last "Hand"

New York.—Once upon a time there was a collier dog that did tricks in the circus. He walked on his hind legs and on his fore paws for applause.

One day he got lost. He went hungry and grew thin.

The other day he wandered into a schoolroom at Jamaica and, suddenly finding himself in the presence of spectators, this old troupier immediately began hopping on his hind legs and on his fore paws, expecting—up—plause.

He got five bullets from a policeman's pistol. Somebody had yelled "Mad dog!"

SAVES HER SEVEN CHILDREN

Mother Makes Four Trips Into Burning House to Rescue Boys and Girls in Bed.

Buffalo, N. Y. Mrs. Mary Heller saved her seven children from suffocation by making four trips into her burning home. She was barefooted, and had to travel through three inches of snow outside the house.

The woman was awakened by the roaring of flames. She saved three of the children in the first trip. She took them to a barn and wrapped them in blankets to keep them from freezing. Then she went back and rescued the others.

WEALTHY YOUTH TRAVELS AS HOBO

Heir to Millions Works as Dishwasher, Engine Oiler, Roustabout, Sailor, Soldier, in Last Nine Years.

St. Louis, Mo.—Frederick VanBlarcom, who is suing in the probate court to regain his freedom and control over the income of his inheritance of several million dollars, has told the story of his activities for the last nine years, when he was either in private or public sanitariums or a fugitive from them. The story includes wanderings over half the world, when, as a hobo, dishwasher in a restaurant, fireman, engine room oiler on deep-water ships, roustabout, sailor in the United States navy, and sergeant in the British expeditionary forces, he attempted to keep secret his identity in an effort to prevent his return to asylums.

VanBlarcom was born June 20, 1885, with the proverbial silver spoon in his mouth. He was the only son and heir of Jacob C. VanBlarcom, president of the Tennessee Central railroad. The boy had everything in his childhood that millions could buy. The elder VanBlarcom died in August, 1908. The estate was left to his widow, who died last March, and has never been finally settled.

Paved His Own Way.

"When my father died in 1908 I was twenty-three years old and attending Washington university," VanBlarcom said. "I immediately left college and attended a business school. I pressed clothes and did bookkeeping at night to earn my way, as I had been left only $1,000 as an immediate bequest from my father. From that time until my mother's death I received no money from her, and when I was adjudged of unsound mind last year my estate amounted to $14,500, which I had accumulated through my own efforts."

VanBlarcom's life has been one of almost continuous travel since he left the business college and began work

As a Roustabout With a Circus.

In a car shop in 1910. He then worked as an advertising solicitor for a publishing company, but contracted influenza and was an invalid at home until 1912, when he was forcibly taken to an asylum. He escaped early in 1913 and began his adventures again.

Covered Much Territory.

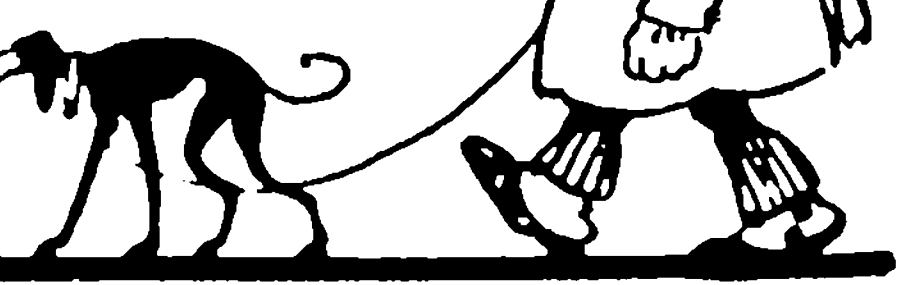

VanBlarcom walked to Crystal City, Mo., where he worked as a day laborer, later firing an engine to earn his way to Memphis, Tenn. From there he went to Eldorado, Ill., where he secured a job as a roustabout with a circus. He then "hobbed" through several cities to Chicago, where he worked as a deck hand on a lake steamer. He enlisted in the navy at Indianapolis and was sent to Mare Island, Cal., and then to the Philippines.

His identity was discovered there and he deserted and went to Honolulu, where he shipped as a seaman on a British mail steamer. He left the ship at Vancouver, Canada, and beat his way to St. Louis, where he was again placed in an asylum. He was arrested for desertion and sent to a naval hospital at Washington, but escaped and reached New York city, where he shipped as a seaman on a British vessel. He enlisted in London, was sent to France, wounded during a battle in the front line trenches, and later was invalided back to the United States, where, after several confinements in asylums and sanitariums, he finally began his legal battle to regain his fortune.

Boy Went to School in Stolen Cars.

Detroit, Mich. The theft of eight automobiles to take him to and from school is charged against James Mullen, seventeen years old. It is alleged that he stole a car to take him from Detroit to a nearby town, where he was finishing his course in high school. He would abandon it there. When he wished to return to Detroit he would steal another car for the return trip.

Current Wit and Humor

HIS ANSWER

"She's suing him for breach of promise."

"Well."

"And the mean thing has entered a vicious defense."

"Vicious?"

"Yes. He has submitted to the court that he is perfectly willing to let a jury of 12 men look at her and decide if any man in his right mind would offer to marry her."

Honest Tenant.

An enterprising and meticulous Londoner wants to live up to the word and letter of his contract, judging by the following "small ad" taken from the London Times:

"Wanted—Ten thousand loathsome black beetles, by a tenant who agreed to leave the premises in the same condition in which he found them."

—Flagler News.

SOME VAMP

She: So she's a vampire in the movies! Why does she work? She's married.

He: Her husband makes her.

Advice.

Boy, remember this advice, Follow it forever: Being smart is always nice, Being hurtful, never.

Lonely Responsibility.

"How many police have you in Crim—son Gulch?"

"Only one," replied Cactus Joe.

"One man can't keep order in as big a place as this."

"Don't expect him to. All we want with a police force is to have some one to blame when anything goes wrong."

A Neglected Opportunity.

Mr. Nextdoor—You have nice grounds around your new home. You ought to put a few bird houses in the trees.

Mr. Grabitall, the Flat Owner—I've thought of that, myself, but I don't know just how to go about it to collect the rent.

Obscurity of Greatness.

"What will be Senator Short-worth's place in history?"

"That's hard to say. The narrative of the senator's achievements is limited chiefly to the Congressional Record. Since nobody reads that ponderous work now, I'm afraid posterity will be equally negligent."

The Case.

Lecturer—Things have come to a pretty pass when my description of the constellations is made to give way on the program to a so-called dog star.

Stage Manager—Sure, that is a Sirius matter.

BUT NOT LOVE.

He—I love you dearly. When I look at you I can hardly control myself.

She—Isn't it funny? When I look at you I can hardly control myself either.

Languages.

The languages a diplomat should speak On various occasions, are so many That oft the auditor will vainly seek For the precise significance of any.

Appropriateness.

Penfield—Do you call that work of his high art? Smeere—Well, the hanging committee must have thought so. They sided it.

The Reliable Quantity.

"Well," replied Senator Sorghum, "It is sure to develop a large number of splendid speeches. But you can't be sure of the outcome. All you can rely on is the output."

Nothing Lacking.

"Nifty house you've got there, old man. All modern improvements, I presume."

"Oh, yes, including a complete set of mortgages."

HIS CAR

"I suppose you get a great deal of pleasure out of your car?"

"No, I can't say that I do."

"What's the trouble?"

"The car's all right, but Monday is mother's day to drive it; on Tuesday, the girls want it; Wednesday, I promised to let the boy have it, and Friday and Saturday it has to go in for repairs. Sunday, if I am very good, they let me drive myself."

Slightly Accommodating.

"Your daughter seems to be a strictly modern miss."

"She makes some concessions to old-fashioned ideas," said Mr. Dubwalte.

"How is that?"

"She occasionally permits me to meet some of the young men she runs around with."

Fluency No Advantage.

"Do you speak any foreign language fluently?"

"Not fluently," replied Senator Sorghum. "I find it better to slow down the conversation as much as possible, so I can take time to think things over before committing myself."

Hours and Minutes.

"Your constituents regard you as the man of the hour, do they not?"

"They used to," replied Senator Sorghum. "But at present I'm lucky if they stand for a twenty-minute speech."

Johnny's Raw Joke.

Big Sister—Now, Johnny, we're going to have my gentleman friend to dinner and I want you to eat at the second table.

Johnny—I'd just as soon. Pa says he ain't half-baked, anyway.

Personal Property.

"I am entitled to my own opinions," remarked the positive man.

TAKING PRECAUTIONS

The Trusting Bride-Elect: Don't you think you'd better engage some plain clothes detectives to see that none of your friends lift any of our wedding presents?

The Happy Man: Sure! And you notify your kid brother that he'll have to give a surety bond before he can act as ring bearer.

Some Little Help.

I cannot answer questions deep. But while from such a task I shrink, I can at least a silence keep And let the real people think.

Good Old Days.

"Do you think we are getting back to the good old days?"

Giving Her Time.

He—Will you—er—that is, I want to ask—

She—Oh, this is so sudden!

He—Don't get excited, please. I am making it just as slow as I can.

True, Indeed.

Mason—Do you believe in patriotism?

Russell—Oh, yes, patriotism is all right, but so many people mix politics with their patriotism."—Answers.

Giving Him Publicity.

Ethel—Stella is awfully affectionate at times.

Clara—Goodness, yes! She even kisses her husband in public.

Expert Testimony.

Ted—I'm claiming to be quite a golf player. What do you think?

Ned—I'd rather wait until I hear what his caddy says.

Ready to Substitute!

She—I'm just going to hug the fire-place when we get in the parlor!

His—Why do that? I'm a brick!— Wayside Tales.

All-Day Session.

"There's a man from Florida I want to talk business to, but I'll have to put it off until tomorrow."

"What's the trouble?"

"He has just met a chap from California and they're arguing about climate."

Not Uncommon.

"I don't see how actors can simulate a laugh so heartily."

Back Bad Since the Grip?

Has a cold or grip sapped your strength? Do you suffer constant backache, feel nervous and depressed? Then look to your kidneys. Many cases of kidney trouble are the result of infectious disease. The kidneys have broken down under the strain of filtering disease-created poisons from the blood. That's why a cold or grip often leaves backache, headaches, dizzy spells and irregular kidney action. Help your weakened kidneys with Doan's Kidney Pills. Doan's have helped thousands and should help you. Ask your neighbor!

To win a race a Jockey doesn't put extra weight on the horse that helps him succeed

No man or woman who wants to succeed in the race of life can afford the handicap of headaches, insomnia, indigestion and debility. Nor can they afford to take anything that may keep up a continual irritation of the nervous system.

Yet this is what many people do who drink excessive amounts of tea or coffee. For tea and coffee contain caffeine, a substance that is sometimes very injurious. Many doctors say that caffeine raises the blood pressure, irritates the kidneys, and over-stimulates the entire nervous system. Also that it is especially bad for growing children, or for any one who has any tendency to nervousness or insomnia.

If you want to avoid a possible cause of headache, insomnia, or nervousness, it might be well to stop taking tea and coffee for awhile, and drink rich, satisfying Postum, instead.

Postum is a delicately-roasted, pure cereal beverage—delicious and wholesome.

Order Postum from your grocer today. Drink this fragrant, healthful beverage for awhile, and see if you will not feel brighter, more active, and more resistant to fatigue—as so many thousands of others have felt.

1809 ABRAHAM LINCOLN 1865

Eyewitness Tells of Lincoln Assassination in Ford's Theater

"An eyewitness of the assassination of Abraham Lincoln!" is a phrase that even fifty-odd years has failed to strip of interest. In an office of the old National Museum, building at Washington one can find George C. Maynard, curator of technology. An atmosphere of peace pervades the place until one speaks the magic words which bring to mind that fateful night at Ford's theater in April, 1865. Then Doctor Maynard tells of what he saw. "That evening," says Doctor Maynard, referring to the night of April 14, 1865, "I went to Ford's. As everybody knows, the play was 'Our American Cousin.' My seat was in the first gallery, on a level with and in full view of the upper right-hand box, which was reserved for President Lincoln and his party.

"The occasion was an unusual one. The war had come to be regarded as an interminable conflict, something

Here is a face upon which men may see
The hushed austerity that nature wears

At touch of twilight, brooding on the cares

Of bygone days and of the days to be;
And yet which bears the clear tranquillity

Of one whose youth has breathed sweet prairie airs,
Or followed firm behind the plowman's shares,

Or trodden leafy forest ways and free.

The forehead tells of mastery; a mind
Which holding life a thing inscrutable,

Kept faith and hope forever sentinel;
The furrowed cheeks, the locked lips sorrowlined,

Betray a will the nation knew so well,
And deep eyes showed a love for all mankind.

CLINTON SCOLLARD.

Our Soldiers, a patriotic song of the times.

"The President and his party did not arrive before the curtain rose. It was during the dairy scene when they came in. Miss Hart, playing Georgianna, was telling an American joke to Mr. Emerson, taking the part of Dunderbary, and he failed to catch the point. Twice she said to him: 'Why, can't you see it?' And he replied: 'No, I can't see it.' At this moment the Presidential party entered, passing around the south side of the gallery to enter the box. The play was suspended until President Lincoln was seated, the audience having risen with one accord and cheered enthusiastically. After some time Georgianna said, with emphasis: 'Well, everybody can see that,' and Dunderbary drawled: 'They ought to see it, you know.'

"It was about 10:30 when the pistol shot which sent the bullet at Lincoln was fired. Booth suddenly slid down from the front of the box onto the stage and rushed diagonally across, disappearing. He caught his foot in the flag decorations and made some exclamation which I did not understand, but no such dramatic speech as has popularly been accredited to him. Had he done anything of that kind I believe he would have been mobbed before he could have escaped. As it was, J. B. Steward, a man of athletic build, sprang onto the stage and was after Booth immediately.

"There was no panic, such as a fire would have caused. The entire audience was stunned, the real significance of the tragedy coming only after several minutes. The theater people swarmed upon the stage. An officer in military uniform managed to get to the President by climbing up from the stage into the box, the door having been barred. Laura Keane came quickly through the gallery with a picher of water, lending an odd note to the scene with her costume and make-up. The door of the box by this time was opened and she entered.

"Intense excitement reigned, yet no lack of self-control. There seemed to be a desire to lend whatever assistance was possible, while the air was electrical with a spirit of vengeance against Booth for the crime just committed. Several people climbed over seats, I myself helping one lady thus in making her exit. Some seats were broken. Yet, withal, the people left the theater slowly and quietly. It was about ten minutes before the President was removed, followed by Mrs. Lincoln supported by two gentlemen. A crowd of people filled Tenth street.

"At that time I was a member of the military telegraph corps of the War department, being a cipher operator. I rushed to the office. Persons I met on the way were ignorant of the tragedy. At the office the news had been learned, but no details, and D. H. Bates, manager of the office, asked for particulars.

"A full force of telegraphers spent the night in the office, sending out reports of the President's condition. It was eight o'clock on the following morning before I left for my lodgings. I walked along G street. The morning was rainy, raw and cheerless. Between Thirteenth and Fourteenth streets, almost in front of Epiphany church, I met a small squad of cavalry, accompanied by a few military officers and civilians on foot. The band was proceeding quietly and with an evident desire to avoid public notice. They were escorting the President's body to the White House.

"There is one other memory of that time of sorrow which I retain vividly. On the morning the President's body began the journey to Springfield it was warm, bright and altogether a day best suited to rejoicing, yet all Washington had come down town to see the funeral procession. Processions, normally, are stretched out, but this one was made as compact as possible. In the front went a detachment of cavalry, wedge shaped. Very slowly they proceeded, making their way steadily into the crowds which swarmed the streets, forcing them silently back to the curb. Carriages containing officials, instead of going single file, went three and four abreast. The horses' footfalls were the loudest sounds, while sobs punctuated the stillness of the watching multitude.

Exemplar of Land of Opportunity.

Robert Lansing, ex-secretary of state, said: "Born in the humble cabin of the Hodgenville farm, Abraham Lincoln is the national exemplar of a land of equal opportunity. His life and his career reveal the fact that the seeds of greatness nourished in the soul of even the most lowly may germinate and develop to perfection in the atmosphere and environment of America."

MR. YOUNG DOG

MR. YOUNG DOG had been told by his mother, who was a good rat catcher, that the one thing in his life worth while was to watch a rat hole and catch the rat.

But Mr. Young Dog was very fond of play and he did not want to work, and it was some time before his mother would trust him to hunt alone. One morning she decided he must catch a rat all by himself or the master would soon be tired of feeding him, so she found a hole in the barn floor where she was sure there was a

Mr. Young Dog could get him and then he knew what had happened, but, though he sat there all day, not once did he see the tip of Mr. Rat's nose, and when his mother came and found he had not caught the rat he was sent to bed without his supper.

"All play and no work make a dog very lean," said his mother, "and the sooner you learn the meaning of this Dogtown saying the better."

Mr. Young Dog was very sad and hungry, but the next day he showed his mother he understood the lesson, for he began to work and soon the barn was free from rats, and the master called him a good doggie.

When I'm alone
I do not moan,
And groan about my loneliness,
But turn to see What memory
Can do to ease away my stress.

With laughter clear,
And wealth of cheer,

rat living and told her son to sit near and catch the rat.

Mr. Young Dog sat down behind a barrel, but pretty soon a spider dangling over his head attracted his eye and he began to play with it.

When the spider drew itself up to the top of the barrel Mr. Young Dog discovered a ball on the floor and began to play with that, and as he rolled it around he saw something run across the floor and disappear into the hole his mother had told him to watch.

He looked around to see if his mother was in sight and then he sat down right beside the hole. "If he pokes out his head," said Mr. Young Dog, "I'll get him this time."

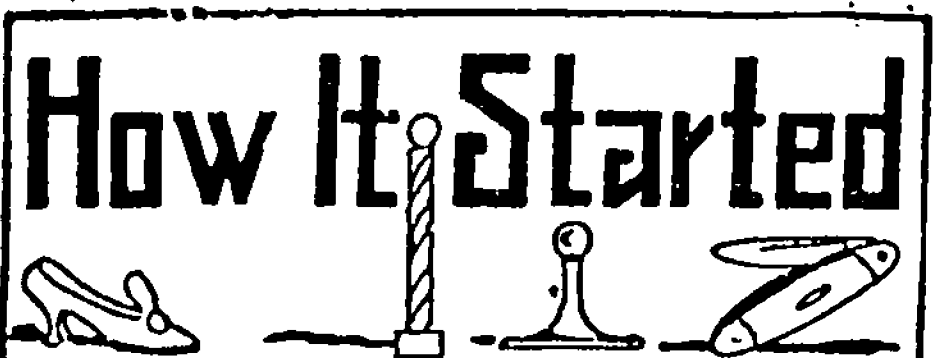

But he did not watch long before he heard a noise outside, so he turned around to see what was going on, and down went his tail right over the hole in the floor.

Mr. Young Dog moved a little and down went the tip end of his tail into the hole and the next thing he knew something nipped his tail good and hard.

Mr. Young Dog yipped and jumped and ran for the door, and there he turned around to see what was behind him, and by the side of the hole sat Mr. Rat.

"Was that your tail?" he asked, sticking up his ears; "I thought it was a bit of rope."

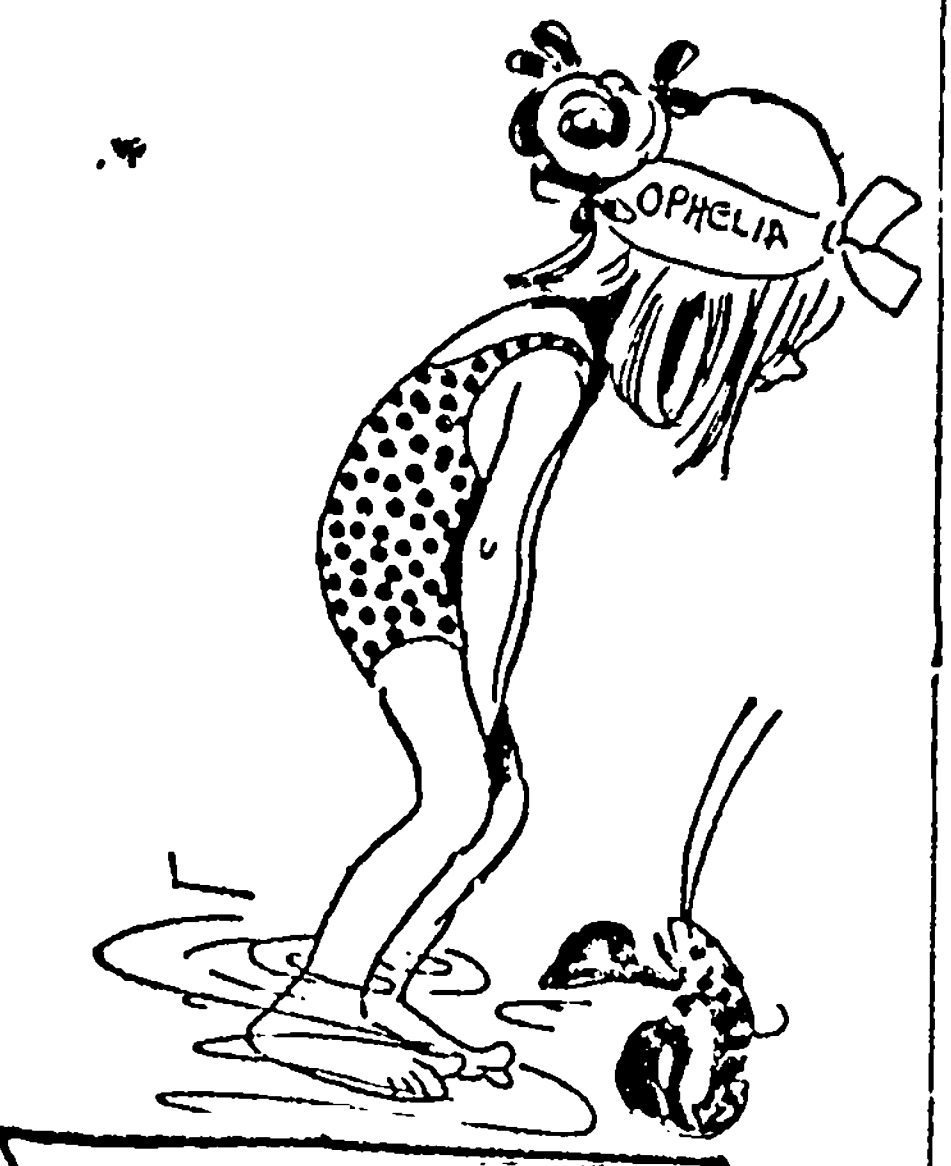

Mr. Rat was back in his hole before

RAISING THE HAT.

"TEN DAYS of old when knights were bold" it was not always safe to go abroad unprotected. Armor was generally worn, and the helmet was indispensable. At the king's court, however, it was illegal to draw a sword, and people in the presence of the king always went bareheaded as a mark of their knowledge of their safety. The same became true in the presence of ladies, and the custom of uncovering became a mark of respect that is universal.

BEAUTY CHATS

LEG DEVELOPMENT

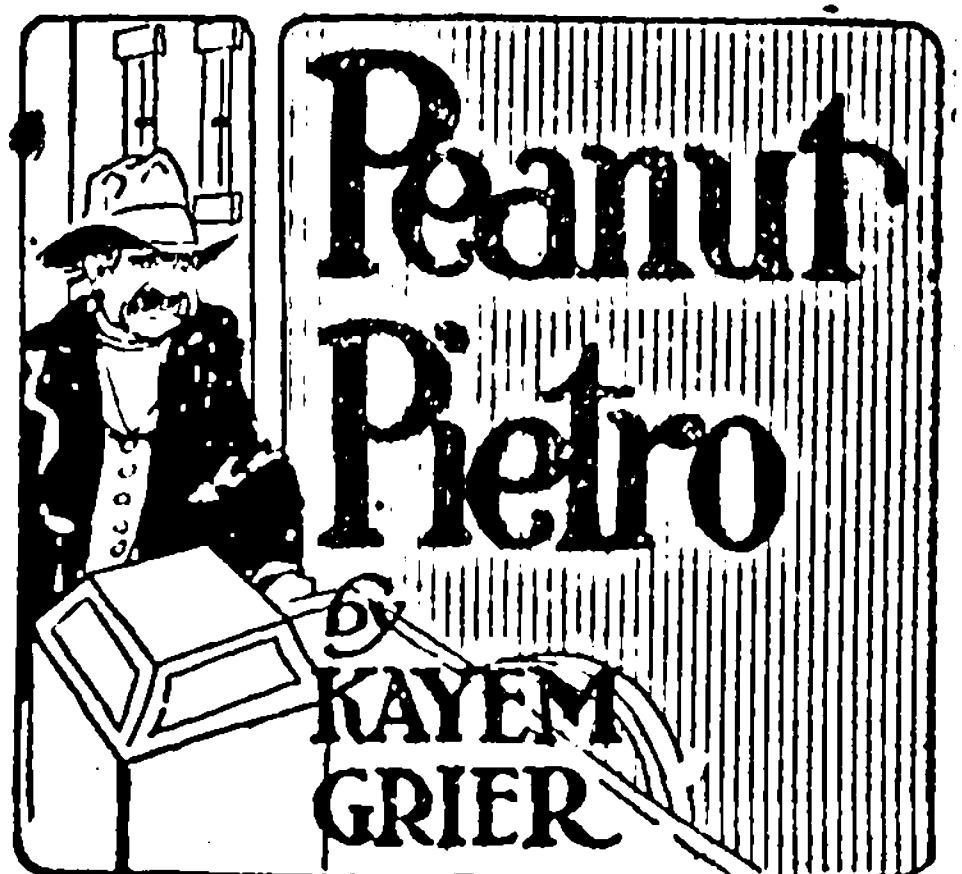

THE human body should be covered evenly with a layer of soft fatty tissue. But in some cases, there is an extra amount of the tissue settled in some parts, and not enough in others. One reason why some women have fat hips with a slender body is that heavy or tight clothes are suspended from the waist, which by its very weight compels this tissue to settle further down upon the hips. Girls who work long hours in sitting positions frequently have large hips for much the same reason.

In the same way tight garters are often responsible for stopping circulation into the lower leg and therefore prevent the fatty tissue from accumulating there. Exercise is the only way to develop the legs, the more exercise the better the shape of the legs. The leg swinging movement is excellent to develop the entire body such wonderful exercise for making the legs beautiful. Much of the dance is on the toes. Swimming and walking, too, will develop the legs; tennis playing is excellent as well.

The girl whose work keeps her sitting, who does not walk much, will find that bathing the leg from the knee down with hot water and massaging it vigorously while the skin is still hot and wet, will help to overcome lack of development or flabbiness.

The Deadly Arrow.

A mounted Indian or white man with bow and arrows sometimes could kill more buffaloes than a man could kill with a rifle, says the American Forestry Magazine. At close range the arrow was as deadly as the bullet. It made less noise, and arrows could be discharged four times as rapidly as bullets from muzzle-loading guns.

RECLAIMING THE CHILDREN

At a recent orthopedic clinic held by the State Board of Health, Miss Margaret McMillan, secretary of the Adams county Red Cross, succeeded in having 18 children, meningitis victims, examined, and 4 of them were found in a very hopeful condition, and others could be helped. Miss McMillan, on a visit to Philadelphia, last week, met Emil Gefvert, the eminent brace maker. He accepted an invitation to visit Gettysburg, and will be at the Red Cross room on Friday at 2 P. M. All of the 18 children who were at the orthopedic clinic are urged to be there; and if there are other children in the county, parents and relatives should see that they are there. This will give the children of this county the advantage of the help of the great expert. Some of these children have been recommended for X-ray examination and it is hoped to have this work done at the Annie M. Warner hospital. Mr. Gefvert is the expert who had charge of fitting an Adams county child with a brace, who had never walked and before the child left his place was able to walk around the room.

Miss McMillan went to Philadelphia with little Sarah Utz, a 7-year-old child, of near Bittinger, who since birth has suffered from a most unusual condition. Miss McMillan took the child to the Univ. of Pennsylvania where room had been prepared for her on Monday. The case was one that at once attracted attention, a very unusual case. The result was that the greatest experts of the city have been called in to see the child. They gave assurance that everything that could be done for the child would be done and gave encouragement toward a hopeful outcome. Miss McMillan last October took a meningitis case to the Jefferson hospital and the child was successfully operated upon by the eminent orthopedic surgeon, Dr. Rugh, and was then fitted with braces by Emil Gefvert and will be able to walk comfortably before long. Miss McMillan about a month ago took to the University Hospital another child with a bad hip and she has been receiving the best of attention and Miss McMillan during this trip saw the child and the good news of a beneficial outcome without an operation.

Pre-war service, for which Gettysburg business interests have been striving for several years, is to be re-established on the Gettysburg and Harrisburg railroad in very near future. There will be three trains a day each way, one being added each way in the middle of the day, and the evening train being moved two hours later than at present and arriving at Gettysburg at 9:20. The service given during and since the war has been very unsatisfactory, and the bus line established last fall has done a large business.

The Season's Most Significant Style Event TRELAINE the Beautiful New Fabric Now Interprets Printz Designs

Trelaine is here. Trelaine, the new material, rich, soft and beautifully appealing, is enthusiastically approved by leading style authorities and fashion magazines.

And small wonder. For Trelaine presents a combination of qualities that only one fabric in a generation can embody. Its brushed wool surface fairly draws the hand to touch its softness. Its range of lovely colors, vivid or subdued, appeals to every taste.

Trelaine tailors irreproachably; half-knitted and half-woven, it cannot sag or ravel. The end of a journey shows a Trelaine garment no more mussed or wrinkled than the beginning.

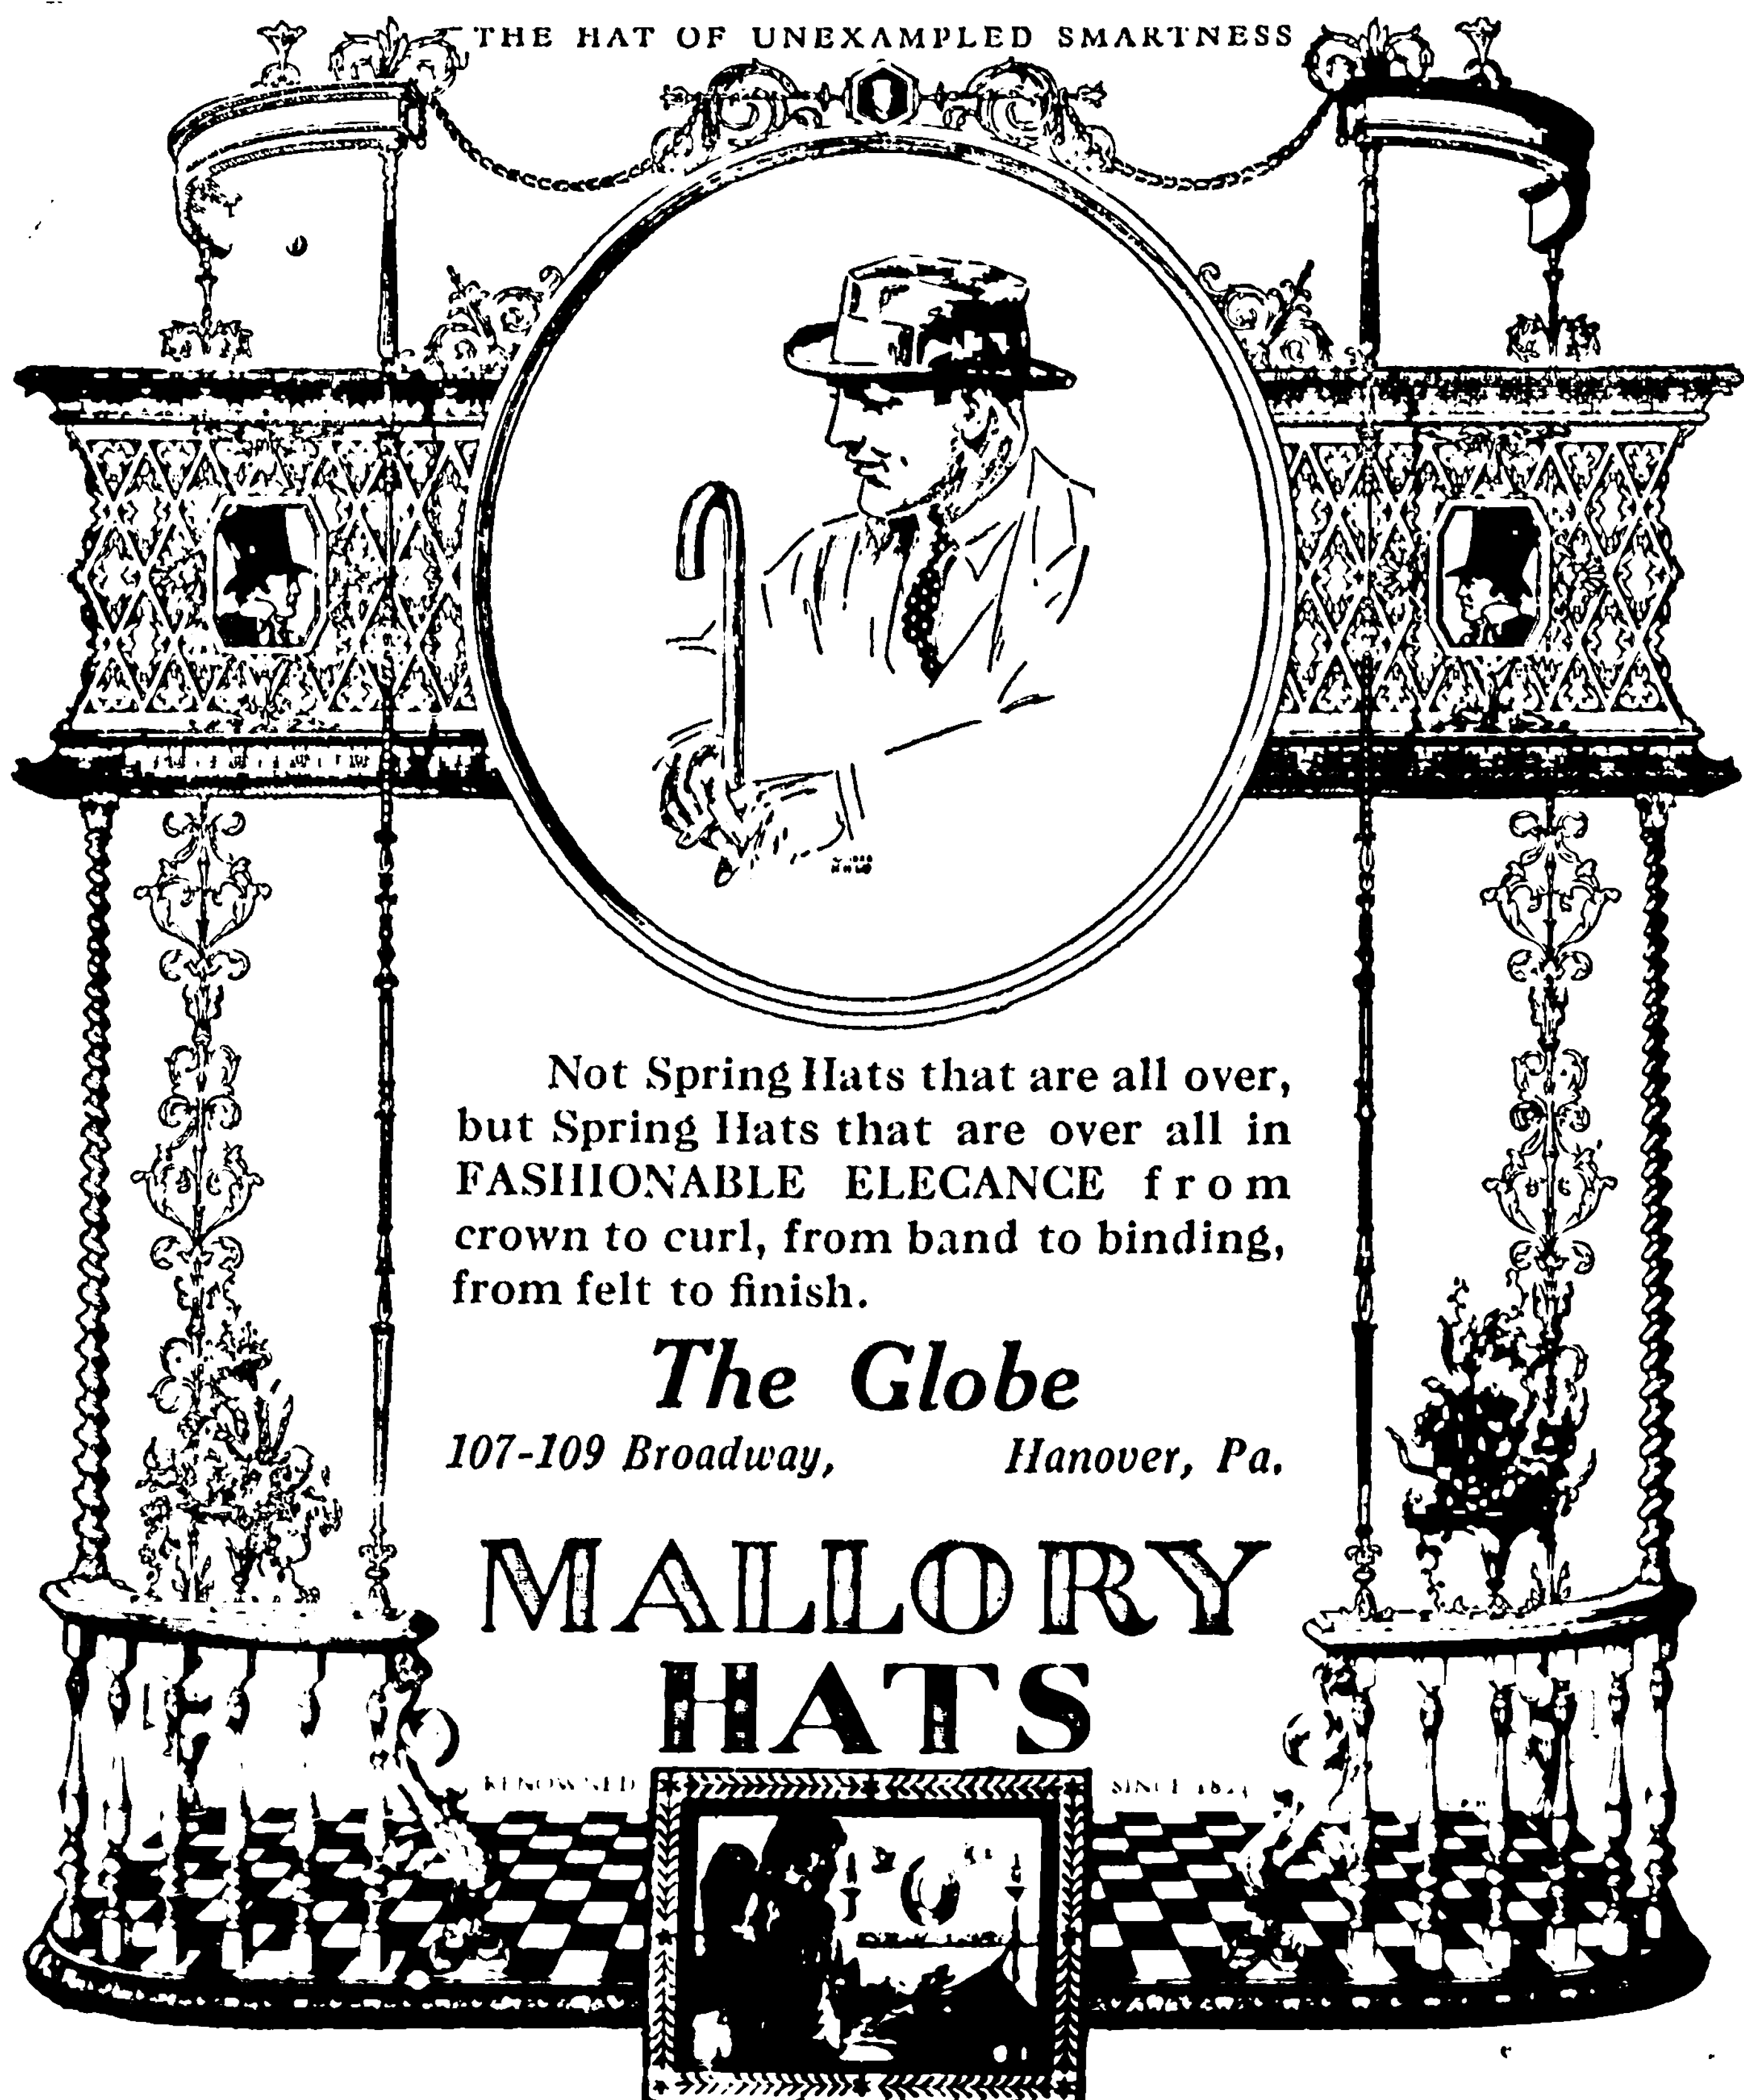

We now have the distinction of offering the first presentation of Trelaine garments. Heretofore limited to a very few metropolitan shops, Trelaine now interprets exclusive Printz designs, today being shown in our garment section.

We count it a pleasure to show these beautiful new modes of Trelaine—a fabric surely destined for a permanent place in American dress. You will be delighted with their style, their quality and very moderate prices. This is your invitation to be one of the first to wear Trelaine.
